

U.S.-Soviet Agreement Might Decrease Budget

WASHINGTON (AP) — The new U.S.-Soviet agreement to negotiate limitation of nuclear arms may have averted Pentagon weapons decisions that could have added significantly to next year's $76-billion defense budget.

But, Pentagon officials say, there will be no slowdown in construction of the U.S. Safeguard antiballistic-missile defense system or deployment of multiple-warhead offensive missiles already under way, pending solid developments in negotiating an arms-control pact.

These officials note the two nuclear superpowers have agreed so far only on the framework of negotiations.

Nobody expects the Russians to halt their missile and antimissile buildup which set off claims of alarm in Washington recently by defense officials who said the Soviets are building new launch bases for huge intercontinental missiles.

Prospect of an offensive-weapons limitation probably dims hopes of those urging the United States embark on a new advanced weapon such as the Air Force's $11-billion B1 bomber and the Navy's underwater long-range missile system estimated to cost between $10 billion and $12 billion.

Both are early in the development cycle and several years away from a production decision.

Expressing concern about the Soviet weapons growth, the Nixon administration increased funds for the two weapons in the new budget and development is moving ahead at what Laird considers the fastest possible pace.

The momentum of Soviet nuclear weapons advances prompted Secretary of Defense Melvin R. Laird to tell a newspaper publishers group last month that, unless there is "convincing progress" in the U.S.-Soviet strategic arms limitation talks—SALT—the United States might have to take offsetting actions.

At a news conference a few days later, Laird indicated he was considering increasing the number of Minuteman intercontinental ballistic missiles beyond the present $1,000.

Other officials hinted the Pentagon might accelerate conversion of Polaris missile-firing submarines to the Poseidon with its 10 separately targetable warheads.

The Russians, far behind the United States in number of missiles five years ago, have outpaced this country in combat-ready ICBMs with more than 1,440. At the same time, U.S. officials say, the Soviets have been constructing new missile-launching submarines at a rate that, if continued, will overtake the United States in this phase of weaponry by 1974. The United States has 656 submarine-mounted missiles compared to Russia's 350-plus.

Although both countries have been pressing forward with multiple-warhead technology, U.S. officials say the United States is ahead.

The Russians have had an antimissile defense in place around Moscow for several years and are reported expanding it beyond 64 launch sites.

Requires Intensive Talks

Nixon Seeks '71 Curb

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon voiced hope today for a U.S.-Soviet agreement "sometime this year" to curb offensive and defensive nuclear weapons. "Some very intensive negotiations will have to take place to achieve our goal," Nixon added.

The President referred to Thursday's U.S.-Soviet announcement aimed at spurring the progress in the Strategic Arms Limitation Talks (SALT).

In it, the U.S. and Soviet leadership agreed to concentrate this year on working out an antiballistic missile (ABM) limitation and on measures to curb offensive missiles.

Nixon conferred with U.S. negotiator Gerard Smith before Smith's return to Vienna to resume the SALT discussions.

Smith hopes to win Soviet agreement to start the next round of SALT talks in Helsinki in July, after a brief recess from the Vienna meeting.

In his nationally broadcast statement Thursday Nixon said that in secret exchanges "involving the highest level of both governments," the Soviet Union and the United States:

—"Have agreed to concentrate this year on working out an agreement for the limitation of the deployment of ABM (antiballistic missile) systems."

—"Have also agreed that, together with concluding an agreement to limit ABMs, they will agree on certain measures with respect to the limitation of offensive strategic weapons."

The Soviets issued an identical announcement.

The SALT talks, started in 1969, have been stymied since last fall over whether to include both offensive and defensive missiles in one disarmament package.

The Soviets proposed an ABMs-only deal as a first step. The Americans say ABMs are designed to defend against offensive missiles, so an ABM agreement must be linked to a curb on offensive missiles such as Russia's big SS9s.

White House officials said the joint announcement does not mean either power changed its basic position at the SALT talks. The administration still wants to proceed with its request to Congress for an expanded Safeguard ABM pending further development from the SALT negotiations, they said. In fact, the Soviets are currently constructing more sites for long-range missiles and the United States is proceeding with the Safeguard ABM system, designed to guard U.S. sites against such long-range rockets.

The sentence focusing on an agreement to limit ABMs seemed to lean toward the Soviet position.

But White House officials pointed to the sentence about limiting offensive weapons as in line with the U.S. position.

They said that under the agreed wording, an ABM accord could be concluded only along with agreement on curbing offensive missiles. And since the scope of an ABM agreement could not be determined without knowing what would be in an offensive weapons agreement, they said negotiations on both would have to proceed concurrently.

Costs Still Inch Upward

WASHINGTON (AP) — Grocery prices rose sharply again in April but smaller increases for some housing and transportation costs yield last month's overall rise in living costs to three-tenths of one per cent, the government said today.

The April increases brought the government's Consumer Price Index up to 120.2, meaning it cost $12.02 last month for every $10.00 worth of typical family purchases in the 1967 base period.

The Labor Department said the index was 4.3 per cent above a year earlier for the smallest annual rise in nearly three years and that the increase since February was the smallest of any three-month period in four years.

The 4.3 per cent gain in a year represented a slowing from the 5.5 per cent climb in calendar 1970 and 6.1 per cent in 1969.

Grocery prices rose nine-tenths of one per cent. Housing costs edged up one-tenth of one per cent, transportation three-tenths, clothing four-tenths, medical care six-tenths and recreation six-tenths, said the report by the Bureau of Labor Statistics.

The bureau also reported that some 45 million rank and file workers gained 73 cents a week in pay to an average of $124.75, and that after allowance for federal tax deductions and higher living costs, purchasing power was two per cent above a year earlier. However, the buying power of the average pay check was still 1.9 per cent below the record peak of September 1968.

The big rise of nine-tenths of one per cent for food followed an equally large jump in March grocery prices.

Most of the April food rise was due to increases in fresh fruit and vegetable prices.

"Prices of beef and veal, cereal and bakery products and dairy products increased instead of declining as they usually do in April," the report said.

Except for a decline in mortgage interest rates, there were continued rises for most consumer services.

Budget Cuts in 1972 Form Meeting Topic

Members of the Red Cross board of directors and the United Fund budget committee met Thursday night at the Farm and Home Building to discuss a $1,200 slash in the 1972 Red Cross budget allocation.

Jim Denny, president of the Red Cross board; Mrs. Jane Menefee, executive secretary, and other board members sought to have the $1,200 restored. The budget reduction was made by the United Fund board because of what that board considered to be the unreasonable amount that went to the national Red Cross office.

The national office of the Red Cross currently takes 52.2 per cent of the amount allocated by the United Fund. The Red Cross received $16,200 this year from United Fund, and had requested that amount for next year, but this was chopped to $15,000 by the UF board upon recommendation of the budget committee.

Leroy Iuchs, chairman of the UF budget committee, and Dr. Stephen Poort, campaign chairman, said the United Fund could not afford to let more than $8,000 leave the county each year in face of pressing local charitable needs.

Red Cross board members pointed out that the share sent to the national Red Cross office goes to fight disasters wherever they occur, and would be used locally if the need arose.

It was agreed that the Red Cross request for restoration of the $1,200 would be taken back to the United Fund board, although it appeared doubtful that the decision would be reversed.

Help Disabled Veterans

Poppy flowers made by disabled veterans in hospitals went on sale Friday in Sedalia. Here 12-year-old Norma Gravitt, 316 West Henry, sells a flower to World War II veteran Frank J. Butler, 604 South Kentucky. According to Mrs. Henry Niemann, treasurer of the Pettis County chapter of the American Legion Auxiliary which is sponsoring the poppy sale, about 5,000 flowers have been distributed in Sedalia for the weekend sale. The flowers are not priced and are given in exchange for freewill donations which go toward helping hospitalized war veterans.

Blind Group Meets To Plan Activities

The Pettis County Association for the Blind held an organizational meeting Thursday night at the First Methodist Church and elected a slate of officers to help the club get off the ground.

The group is the first of its kind in this area and is primarily aimed at establishing communications among the 39 blind and partially-sighted people in Pettis County.

Jim Cunningham, one of the group's organizers, noted that, "Many people refuse to admit they're blind until they're helpless. We want to reach those people and let them know where they can get training and inform them of the services available to partially-sighted and blind people."

Other goals cited by club members at the meeting include cooperation with other physically handicapped people, increasing public awareness of the abilities and problems shared by the blind, and general socializing by the blind themselves.

"Many blind people get tired of the same routine every day. We hope to give the blind a place to go and perhaps set up group activities such as playing cards in braille," Cunningham explained.

The group also expressed interest in getting a permanent meeting place in the proposed city recreation center.

Officers elected Thursday were: Beverly Wright, chairman; Cunningham, vice-chairman; and Max Shirky, secretary-treasurer.

Others attending the meeting included Brooks Bapple, Roy Rogers, Mrs. Cunningham, Mr. and Mrs. Eugene McMillan and Rev. John Thornberry, visitation minister who will help coordinate activities between the blind and the elderly.

The next meeting will be held the afternoon of June 9 at the Bapple residence, 1911 East Broadway.

Leaders Defy Sadat's Call

TEL AVIV (AP) — Israeli leaders have defied Egyptian President Anwar Sadat's new call on Washington to pressure Israel into complete withdrawal from the territory it occupied in the 1967 war.

Foreign Minister Abba Eban told a political rally that Sadat is wrong if he thinks Israel can be "squeezed like an orange" into giving up its vital interests. He said he was surprised the Egyptian leader still believes Israel would accept outside dictation.

Family and friends of these graduates will want to save this feature which will include 330 S-C students.

Farewell To UF Secretary

At their monthly meeting, the directors of the Sedalia-Pettis County United Fund gave a farewell dinner Friday at Bothwell Hotel in honor of Mrs. Barbara Loveland, third from left, who resigned as the fund's executive secretary after 4 1/2 years in that position. Mrs. Loveland

Seek Mental Health Aid

About 20 Pettis Countians attended a Thursday night meeting at State Fair Community College to organize a county mental health association.

Three committees, designed to help in the organization of the group, were proposed and Tom McCully, who presided at the meeting, appointed chairmen.

A membership committee, chaired by Ron Kennedy, Pettis County Extension area youth agent, will seek to obtain memberships for the Mental Health Association.

A constitution and by-laws committee was designated, with Jay Lazerson as chairman.

The nominating committee, chaired by Robert Woolery, will seek commitments from those interested in serving as officers for the association.

The main purpose of the local association, Kennedy said, would be to work in cooperation with both the Missouri and national associations for mental health.

Kennedy added the local services of the group would be to provide information and assistance for persons seeking help.

He added the association would serve to educate the public on mental illness and explore opportunities to provide volunteer services for hospital patients, or those currently seeking help through clinics or special education.

Kennedy also indicated there is a great need to improve immediate local attention for the mentally or emotionally disturbed, a condition which a local mental health association could help alleviate, he added.

He indicated that social action by the association would help to mobilize citizen support to strengthen local laws and initiate specific financial requests for state help for patients and families of patients.

Kennedy added that the Mid-Missouri Mental Health Center had earlier requested a local liaison group be formed to coordinate efforts of the center's Columbia facility and the counseling center here.

Tom Wells, a psychiatric social worker for the Mid-Missouri Mental Health Center, Columbia, who also heads the traveling team which serves the Sedalia Counseling Center, gave a presentation of local services available through the center here, the closing of which is threatened in June due to budget cuts in the center's state appropriation.

Wells discussed at length the problem of state financing in a question and answer session following his presentation.

The next organizational meeting is scheduled for 7:30 p.m. June 24, at State Fair Community College.

Survey Reveals Clergy's Attitude To Parishioners

By REV. DAVID POLING

About a year ago, editor and writer James F. Fixx decided to conduct an unusual opinion poll among clergymen in the United States. The question was simple, yet basic: How did clergymen look at the people in their parish? We have had reams of material on the attitudes and activities of the men of the cloth. Why not turn the tables and ask: How do you, as pastor and preacher, see your people within a church of so much change and uncertainty? What are the realities of church life in 20th-century America?

Where is the weakness and the strength of the Protestant community today?

The findings of the Fixx survey are published in the May issue of Christian Herald, representing a broad national sampling from a list of more than 100,000 churches and touching all denominations and geographic sections in the land. Aside from a mail poll, Fixx held in-depth interviews with pastors and his findings are helpful in understanding the mood of parish and pastor:

1—Churchgoing is significantly less important in people's lives today than it once was. More than 80 per cent of the respondents said that "because of the pace and intensity of contemporary life, the people they serve are less closely involved in the church and less dependent on what it provides." Some confessed a feeling of growing professional irrelevance, with psychiatrists and psychiatric social workers taking over some of the functions that formerly belonged to the pastor.

2—The church is most influential with older people, least influential with those under 25. Of those polled, 46 per cent said the church meant a lot to those over 45, but "a mere 8 per cent feel it is most important to those under 25."

Several clergymen across the country argued that this doesn't mean that young people today are any less religious. "They simply aren't oriented to the institutional church," said one 45-year-old pastor. "But they are, I think, substantially more religiously concerned than the two previous generations. Their whole outlook is in terms of values and persons. The problem is that the institutional church has become so identified with the status-quo that in their eyes it's simply not where the real problems are."

3—There was the usual stress between what the pastor wanted to do with his time and what his congregation thought he ought to do with his hourly pursuits. Most clergymen pleaded for more time and study and more community involvement. At the other end of the scale, church members wanted more effort calling and counseling and a high priority of parish interests that frequently ignored the community.

4—A fourth of the ministers think their congregations are not aware of a minister's need for an adequate salary. Said Fixx on the mood of the respondents: "Here was one place in the poll that more than a trace of bitterness revealed itself." A pastor in the Midwest observed, "There are guys who would go under if their wives didn't work."

5—Despite all these problems, virtually all the ministers polled feel that the major need is not more money or more people, but deeper commitment. Fixx noted that "for every man who is inclined to be critical of his people, there is another who is profoundly satisfied, stimulated and optimistic about his job and future. Yet many clerics said the church is going to have to restructure its patterns as it did in the Reformation. And, as everyone knows, the Reformation restructured virtually everything it touched." Accepts Jeff City Pastorate

Rev. James W. Kalthoff

The Rev. James W. Kalthoff, who has been pastor of Our Savior Lutheran Church for the past five years, has accepted a call to serve as pastor of Faith Lutheran Church, Jefferson City. Mr. Kalthoff's farewell service will be held at 9 a.m. Sunday, followed by a farewell dinner at 12 noon.

Rev. Kalthoff is a native of Marshall. He received his college training at the University of Missouri, Columbia, and St. Paul's College, Concordia. He graduated from Concordia Theological Seminary, Springfield, Ill., in 1963. His first pastorate was at Our Savior Lutheran Church, Muscatine, Iowa.

In August 1966 The Rev. Kalthoff was installed as pastor of the Sedalia Church. In addition to pastoring his congregation, he also served as counselor for area congregations affiliated with the Lutheran Church-Missouri Synod and served a term as chairman of the Sedalia Circuit Pastoral Conference. He served on the public relations committee of Pettis County Ministerial Association.

Mr. Kalthoff's wife, Vickie, has been active in church affairs and helped with the physical education classes at St. Paul's Lutheran School. She also organized the K-Belles Baton and Acrobatics Studio and is currently serving as assistant superintendent of the Missouri State Fair Baton Twirling Contest.

The Kalthoffs have three children: John, age 9; Kassandra, 7; and James, 4.

Episcopal Bishop's Consecration Set

The ordination and consecration of the Rev. Arthur Anton Vogel, Ph.D., as a bishop of the Episcopal Church will take place Tuesday at Grace and Holy Trinity Cathedral, Kansas City.

Dr. Vogel is to be the bishop coadjutor of the Episcopal Diocese of West Missouri, and will succeed the Rt. Rev. Edward Welles, the present bishop, by 1975.

As bishop coadjutor, he will have charge of the mission churches of the diocese, of planning, and various other responsibilities as they are designated by Bishop Welles. All Episcopal churches in the Sedalia area come under the Diocese of West Missouri.

The ceremony at which he is to be ordained and consecrated will use a newly authorized rite. Presiding Bishop John E. Hines is the chief consecrator, and Bishop Welles and Bishop Donald H. V. Hallock of Milwaukee will be principle consecrators.

The preacher at the service will be the Very Rev. Donald Parsons, dean of Nashotah Seminary in Wisconsin, where Dr. Vogel has been a professor of theology for over 17 years.

Dr. Vogel was born in 1924, and is a native of Milwaukee. After attending schools in

Dr. Arthur Vogel

Wisconsin, he completed his Ph.D. at Harvard.

He was elected Bishop Coadjutor at a special convention held in Kansas City last Dec. 6. He is expected to assume his duties on Aug. 1.

Methodists Will Meet In Fayette

Pastors of the United Methodist Churches of Sedalia and surrounding area, along with a lay member from each charge, will attend the Missouri West Annual Conference Tuesday through Friday at Central Methodist College, Fayette. Also attending will be the superintendent of the Sedalia district, Dr. N. Clinton Chastain.

One of the functions of the conference is the assignment of ministers to the churches for the coming year. Bishop Eugene M. Frank of St. Louis will preside over the conference.

Chambers of Senate Resemble a Picnic

DES MOINES, Iowa (AP) — The chambers of the local Senate looked something like an unorthodox picnic for about half an hour Thursday evening. As debate on a tax bill continued without a dinner break, Senate Sgt. at Arms Romayne Huffman took $82 worth of orders for dinners to be brought in.

About 7:30, Senate pages and others arrived with 48 chicken dinners, 10 sandwiches, several cardboard tins of coleslaw and two cooler chests full of soft drinks. These were disseminated and many legislators and others sat at their desks eating fried chicken, while others gathered around paper bags of hamburgers, milk shakes and potato chips.

"Now who says the legislature isn't a picnic?" quipped one observer.

Flat Creek Baptist Sets Special Service

Flat Creek Baptist Church will hold a memorial service at 10 a.m. May 30 followed by a basket dinner at noon.

The speaker for the 2 p.m. service will be the Rev. Willis Chaney, pastor of First Baptist Church, Charleston, Mo.

Mr. Chaney is a former pastor of the Flat Creek church and the associational missionary for the Harmony Baptist Association. He is a former chaplain in the United States Army.

Cemetery Assn. Sets Memorial Day Service

The Mt. Zion Cemetery Association will hold its annual Memorial Day service Sunday at Mt. Zion Christian Church near Dunksburg.

The program will include a regular 9:30 a.m. service followed by a basket dinner at noon and a meeting at 2 p.m.

Leo K. McNeal, 2603 South Woodlawn Dr., will be the speaker.

The meetings are open to the public, according to Mrs. Norval Dirck, association secretary, Knob Noster.

Missouri Towns In School Effort

KANSAS CITY (AP) — St. Louis and Wardell, Mo., are among 13 cities chosen to take part in a new effort to help disadvantaged children, says a federal official.

Donald Sharp, of the Office of Education, told regional education commissioners Thursday that the program was massive and would consolidate about 40 programs in eight agencies, including Model Cities, Office of Education, Public Health Service and Head Start.

Sharp said the project has been named TREND and will be under the Office of Education at first.

Primary goals of TREND are to improve equal education opportunity, organize a body of knowledge, and mobilize and train educational personnel, he said.

All educational, health, nutritional and social behavior needs of deprived children will be attacked, he said. An initial $650,000 has been allocated to start the program, and Sharp expects millions of dollars to follow.

Born Oct. 14, 1882, in Camden County, he was the son of the late William F. and Nancy M. Arnhold.

On March 12, 1911, he married Bessie Mae Thompson at Macks Creek. She survives of the home.

Mr. Arnhold, who moved to Windsor in 1944, was a member of the Calvary Baptist Church here.

Also surviving are one daughter, Mrs. Floyd Howard, one son, Harold Arnhold, both of Windsor; one sister, Mrs. Mary Green, Odessa; one brother, E. A. Arnhold, Climax Springs; nine grandchildren and 14 great-grandchildren.

Funeral services will be held at 2 p.m. Monday at the Gouge Funeral Home with the Rev. Jim Wells officiating, assisted by the Rev. O. L. Taylor.

Burial will be in Laurel Oak Cemetery.

The family will receive friends from 7:30 to 9 p.m. Sunday at the funeral home.

Emil P. Neef

BOONVILLE — Emil P. Neef, 85, Ashley Manor Nursing Home, formerly of 519 West Broadway, Sedalia, died Friday morning at the Cooper County Hospital here following a lengthy illness.

He was born May 26, 1885, son of Frederick and Sophia Wehling Neef. He had lived most of his life in Sedalia.

He was a member of the Presbyterian Church and had been secretary for the Missouri Bankers Association until his retirement.

Survivors include three brothers, Henry C. Neef and Peter J. Neef, both of Boonville; Fred Neef, Houstonia; two sisters, Mrs. William H. Selck, Boonville, and Mrs. William Seigel, Cleveland, Miss.

Funeral services will be held at 2 p.m. Sunday at the William Wood Funeral Home with the Rev. Bryant Hall officiating.

Burial will be in Walnut Grove Cemetery.

The family will receive friends from noon Saturday until the time of services.

Louis Poppinga

MALTA BEND — Louis Poppinga, 67, died late Thursday in a St. Joseph Hospital.

Born Nov. 16, 1903, in Pekin, Ill., he was the son of Henry B. and Annie Nedderman Poppinga.

On Aug. 25, 1939, he married Alta Mina Simms, in Clinton, who survives of the home here.

Mr. Poppinga was a farmer and stockman.

Also surviving are one brother, Edward Poppinga and two sisters, Miss Etta Poppinga and Miss Louise Poppinga, all of 2614 Stephenson, Sedalia; and several nieces and nephews.

Funeral services will be held at 3 p.m. Sunday at the Campbell-Lewis Funeral Home, Marshall.

Burial will be at Sunset Memorial Gardens.

The family will receive friends from 7 to 9 p.m. Saturday.

Postmaster Explains Revisions

An explanation of the reorganization of the postal service was given by Postmaster Maurice Hogan to Kiwanians at their meeting Thursday at the Bothwell Hotel.

Hogan opened his presentation by showing a color film dealing with the magnitude of the postal service's task and some of the new technology that has been developed to deal with it.

He then explained the main provisions of the Postal Reorganization and Salary Adjustment Act of 1970, under which the U.S. Postal Service will take over July 1. The main provisions of the act set up a non-partisan commission, assisted by an advisory committee, to administer the U.S. postal system.

Hogan said the reorganized Postal Service is designed to be self-sufficient, and not dependent upon the federal government for subsidies, which amount to around $1 billion a year at present.

One local change under the reorganization will place the Sedalia post office under the Chicago regional office. It is currently under the St. Louis office.

Hogan was introduced by Dean Allee, program chairman.

Guests were Bob Smith, Topeka, Kan.; Bob Allen and Gary Ewing, with John St. Clair, and the Rev. Jean Cook, with Jim Harms.

Birthday greetings were extended to Dr. Joe Bennett, and singing was led by Abe Rosenthal, accompanied by Mrs. Lillian Maynard.

Videotape Catches 'Sipping' Culprit

SEATTLE (AP) — A State Liquor Board warehouseman picked a bad time to get thirsty, board officials said Wednesday.

Board chairman Jack C. Hood was checking out a new closed-circuit monitor to survey the storage area in a warehouse here May 10 when the camera showed a man remove a bottle from a case of whisky, take a swig and put it back.

Hood called in other Liquor Board officials and showed them a videotape of the incident. A few minutes later the same man was back on the monitor, taking another sip from the same bottle.

Virgil F. Smith, 61, was charged with two counts of petty larceny, one for each sip.

Sedalia, died here Tuesday.

She was married to John DeLay, who preceded her in death in 1953.

Survivors included two sons, John and Earl DeLay, both of Painesville; one daughter, Mrs. Jessie Mae Baugh, state of California; five grandchildren and five great-grandchildren.

Graveside services will be held at 3 p.m. Friday at Crown Hill Cemetery, with the Rev. Robert Kessler, officiating, under the direction of the Heckart-Gillespie Funeral Home.

Mrs. Laura Denny

BALTIMORE, Md. — Mrs. Laura Yeager Denny, formerly of Smithton, died Wednesday at Rose Mont, Pa.

She was married at Sedalia to Grover C. Denny.

Survivors include two sons, Jack Denny, Norfolk, Va.; Donald D. Denny, and one daughter, Mrs. John Shields, both of Baltimore; two brothers, Harry Yeager, Route 1, Sedalia; Victor Yeager, Reno, Nev.; three sisters, Mrs. William R. Boehm, 1119 East 13th, Sedalia; Mrs. A. H. Zeiler, Route 1, Sedalia; Mrs. Elroy Temke, Smithton; four grandchildren and one great-grandchild.

Funeral services and burial will be in Baltimore.

Funeral Services

Funeral services for Jack Hedderich, 15, 1818 West Fifth, who died Wednesday as a result of injuries sustained in a car-bicycle accident Tuesday, were held at 10 a.m. Friday at the McLaughlin Funeral Chapel with the Rev. William Lusk officiating.

Burial was in Crown Hill Cemetery.

Jack Hedderich

Funeral services for Jack Hedderich, 15, 1818 West Fifth, who died Wednesday as a result of injuries sustained in a car-bicycle accident Tuesday, were held at 10 a.m. Friday at the McLaughlin Funeral Chapel with the Rev. William Lusk officiating.

Burial was in Crown Hill Cemetery.

Russell F. Gruver

WARSAW — Funeral services for Russell F. Gruver, 65, who died Wednesday, were held at 2 p.m. Friday at the Reser Funeral Chapel with the Rev. J. D. Little officiating.

Burial was in Englewood Cemetery, Clinton.

Sedalia firemen were called to the Dog 'N' Suds Drive-In, 18th and Limit, at 12:45 p.m. Thursday, when several aprons caught fire in a dryer. Firemen used two pump buckets to extinguish the fire. Damage was estimated at $25.

Milk Shake Up

What happens when a truck loaded with creamed cottage cheese, butter, butter milk and milk decides to stray off the highway and lay on its side? In this case, the inside of the truck was a highly nutritious but unlikely mush of dairy mixture. It was a Meadow Gold Dairy truck driven by Kenneth Leroy Hays, 218 South Grand, who escaped injury. The accident occurred Friday morning on Highway 65 south, about four miles from the city limits.

Graduate To Miss Second Exercises

HUTCHINSON, Kan. (AP) — Dallas Crable, 44, Hutchinson city commissioner, was among 560 students graduating from Hutchinson Junior College Thursday night.

But because of the death of his father-in-law, James Andrew Woodson, 77, Crable was unable to attend the commencement ceremony. Woodson was the city's first Negro policeman.

Crable, the city's first black councilman, was elected this spring.

He missed a high school commencement, too, because he quit high school in 1944 and joined the Navy during World War II. He later obtained a high school diploma through correspondence courses.

Crable retired from the Navy and moved to Hutchinson three years ago. He plans to continue his education by enrolling as a part time student at Sterling College next fall.

Explains Center's Operations

The uniqueness of the Children's Therapy Center here was stressed in a talk by the Center's administrative assistant, Mrs. Mary Kay Hunter, who spoke to a meeting of the Community Retired Teachers Association Wednesday at the Farm and Home Building.

Mrs. Hunter said the only other center similar is located in Texas. She added that the Center works with about 500 children and stressed the need for more classrooms and a multi-purpose room.

She explained how children are referred to the Center and the therapy they receive there. Mrs. Hunter emphasized that the Center is operated entirely on monies received from a yearly fund drive and donations from individuals and businesses.

Mrs. Hunter added that the Sheltered Workshop, started in 1965, was the first such facility in the state to provide work for the handicapped after Therapy Center training.

A report on the annual spring meeting of the RTA of Missouri, held recently in Jefferson City, followed during the business meeting.

The Community Retired Teachers voted to contribute to the Children's Therapy Center and to the legislative fund for the Missouri Retired Teachers Association.

Hostesses at the meeting were Mrs. Grace Ripley, Ottumwa; Miss Beulah Harris, Smithton; and Miss Linnie Swearingen, Miss Mila Swearingen and Mrs. Milo Schroer, all of Sedalia.

NFO Suit Damages Claimed

KANSAS CITY (AP) — A counterclaim for $125,052,000 treble damages under the federal antitrust law has been filed by the National Farmers Organization in U.S. District Court.

Defendants are Mid-America Dairymen Inc., Association Milk Producers Inc., Associated Reserve Standby Pool, three milk marketing organizations and Beatrice Foods Co., and its subsidiary, Boswell Dairies Co.

The NFO petition is a counterclaim to a suit filed previously by Mid-America Dairymen Inc. which charged NFO with antitrust violations.

In the original suit, Beatrice Foods Co. and Boswell Dairies Co. were named defendants along with the NFO. The two companies now are defendants in both cases.

NFO's petition, filed Thursday, charges the defendants conspired to fix prices and to control milk supply in the Midwest market and to exclude the NFO from the market.

The suit also says the defendants used threats, boycotts, and coercion to induce customers not to buy milk from the NFO.

The NFO alleges the defendants tried to compel milk producers to contribute to political slush funds controlled by Mid-America Dairymen and Associated Milk Producers.

SEDALIA DRUG CO. 123 S. OHIO

Prosecutor Arrests Own Son

KANSAS CITY (AP) — The 18-year-old son of the Clay County prosecutor was among 50 persons caught in a net of drug raids planned by his father, William S. Brandom Sr.

William S. Brandom Jr., former honor student and Eagle Scout, was charged Thursday night in Platte County with narcotics possession.

"I'm just sick, sick," exclaimed the elder Brandom after learning his son was arrested. "I had no idea that he was involved. Everything was going so perfectly..."

"One of my main concerns in the investigation and raids was to make the public aware of the problems with narcotics. Apparently I was not aware either." He had spent two months preparing the raids.

"I cannot tolerate drugs," the prosecutor added. "I will not make one excuse. This ought to appraise other families how easily this can happen in theirs."

He engaged a lawyer to represent his son and said he would stay out of the case.

Final Fight Over Transport

WASHINGTON (AP) — Giving up its fight to bring the American supersonic transport plane back to life, the House has thrown a closing punch over how much to pay for the funeral.

It rejected the Senate's $155.8-million SST termination payment Thursday night 157 to 116 and approved $97.3 million instead.

Senators who had been waiting around to take Congress' final vote on ending the SST development program immediately quit and went home.

They could take that final action today only by accepting the $97.3-million figure because the House quit for the weekend and won't even talk about a compromise before Monday.

But although the House has not formally concurred in the Senate's 58-37 Wednesday night death blow to the SST, House leaders concede the fight is over and lost.

"The Senate's action makes perfectly clear," said House Appropriations Chairman George H. Mahon, D-Tex., "that the SST, at the present time is dead and cannot be revived."

The Senate's $155.8 million included repayment of $58.5 million risked by U.S. airlines. Senators called repayment a moral obligation even if not a legal one spelled out in contracts.

But the House's $97.3 million included only $12 million federal SST shutdown costs and $85.3 million repayments required by the contracts: $52.1 million to the Boeing Co. which was building two SST prototypes and $33.2 million to General Electric which was building the engines.

In fact the House last week accepted only the $85.3 million—and then in a brief resurrection turned that burial fund into SST revival money by a vote of 201 to 197.

But the Senate stopped the House drive cold Wednesday night with its third anti-SST vote in a row, and the most decisive one yet.

The White House gave up the SST revival effort even before Wednesday's Senate vote and the House gave in Thursday, largely on the basis of Boeing Board Chairman William H. Allen's estimate that restarting the program would cost an extra $500 million to $1 billion.

This would have been on top of the original $1.7-billion cost estimate—$1.3 billion federal money and $400 million industry money—for building the two SST prototypes.

Stockholders Challenge GM Management Policies

DETROIT (AP) — Stockholders challenging policies of General Motors management conceded that they lacked the votes to have their proposals adopted at the annual meeting today, but predicted they eventually would influence its operations.

Spokesmen for Campaign GM, a Washington-based organization that holds 12 shares of GM stock, said they expected 97 per cent of GM's 286 million shares would be voted against their program.

The group seeks a broadened method of electing the corporation's board of directors and disclosure of more information on GM's policies on auto safety, air pollution and minority hiring.

The spokesmen contended that even a 3 per cent slice of the votes—representing about 8.5 million shares—would have a large enough impact on the corporation to lead to eventual adoption of their proposals.

"We expect that while we'll lose at the meeting, we'll have sufficient strength to implement these reforms—either as a matter of corporate policy or as a matter of federal regulations or perhaps legislation in the future," Philip Moore, executive director of Campaign GM, told newsmen Thursday.

Campaign GM was launched last year by a group called "Project for Corporate Responsibility."

Management said publishing the detailed information sought by Campaign GM might benefit groups with special interests. It said a proposal to require that some candidates for director be nominated by GM employees, dealers and customers would result in a "popularity contest."

Spokesmen for Campaign GM said they received pledges of support from a number of universities, unions, pension funds and other groups.

Moore said Campaign GM was defeated last year in its proposal calling for the election of a black director. But he noted that later Dr. Leon Sullivan, a Negro, was named to the board of directors.

"We also asked for a social audit committee, and although that proposal also was defeated, nevertheless General Motors set up what is essentially a social audit committee," Moore said.

Another proposal calls upon GM to abandon its manufacturing operations in South Africa because of that nation's racial policies.

The proposal—opposed by management but supported by Campaign GM—was sponsored by the Domestic and Foreign Missionary Society of the Protestant Episcopal Church in the United States.

The church, which owns 12-574 shares, said South Africa's apartheid rules "Offend many potential General Motors customers, employees and dealers here and abroad and are contrary to the American system."

GM contended that withdrawal from South Africa "might well aggravate those situations with which the proponents of this proposal express concern."

Supports Regulation Of Networks

KANSAS CITY, Kan. (AP) — Rep. Larry Winn, R-Kan., says national radio and television networks should be regulated in the same manner as local stations.

Winn told a commencement audience at Kansas City, Kan., Community College Thursday night that "it is unfair for the local radio and television licenses to be held solely responsible for network offerings."

"Here in the Kansas City-Topeka area we have some of the finest radio and television stations in the nation. Their newsmen are honest, hard working and dedicated to objectively reporting the news."

The Congressman said "Perhaps it is time for our radio and television networks to be regulated in the same manner as the local stations. At the same time we work toward reasonable regulation of the networks, we should consider the possibilities of relieving the local broadcasters of what appears to be overregulation," he added.

Restraining Order On Music Festival

JOPLIN, Mo. (AP) — Ben Pyle, Jasper County prosecutor, has obtained a temporary restraining order against an air show and music festival planned for the Memorial Day weekend.

Judge Robert Warden of Jasper County Circuit Court set a hearing in the case for May 25 and said the promoters would have to show why the restraining order should not be made permanent.

Pyle's petition alleges the festival would be a public nuisance; that the 21-acre site of old mining ground has no sanitation or medical facilities, and that there was a possibility of drug use during the festival.

Five property owners in the area had urged Pyle to seek the restraining order.

Chilean Mine Takeover

Panther Party Changing

BERKELEY, Calif. (AP) — The cofounder of the Black Panther party says the militant group is making a major change in its tactics—avoiding police confrontations, promoting church attendance and seeking new support within the black community.

Huey Newton said the party "was very wrong to think that it could change the police forces in the way we tried to do it. All we got was war and a lot of bloodshed."

"We of the Panther party were arrogant to say 'dump the church.' When we stepped outside the church we defected from the community because the church is the one institution the whole black community is involved in one way or another."

In a lecture sponsored by a group of San Francisco Bay area theological schools Newton said:

"We lost the favor of the black community and left them behind. Now there's been a change in the makeup of the central committee and a change in thinking. We're going to go to church and get involved in the church and the black community. We want and need the support and favor of the black community."

Presidential Word On 100th Birthday

SANTA CRUZ, Calif. (AP) — Josephine Weber celebrated her 100th birthday anniversary Wednesday and got a birthday card from President Nixon.

Mrs. Weber, a native of Pittsburgh who moved here in 1906, spends much of her time reading her Bible, and doesn't need eye glasses.

"My Lord has something for me to do or he wouldn't leave me here," she said.

Connally Planning Trip To Discuss Dollar Woes

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of the Treasury John B. Connally is going to Germany next week to meet with many of the European government and banking officials most deeply involved in the recent world monetary crisis.

Connally, in office less than four months, is expected to carry President Nixon's message to the American Bankers' Association's international banking conference in Munich that economic recovery in America will not be slowed because of the dollar crisis.

Connally told newsmen Thursday the United States' approach has been to continue economic expansion while fighting to reduce the rate of inflation.

He echoed the thinking of Federal Reserve Board Chairman Arthur F. Burns, who said a day earlier fighting inflation, not reducing interest rates, is the top priority in improving the dollar's international position.

To underscore the importance of Connally's trip, President Nixon Thursday went to the Treasury building to meet with Connally for an hour-and-a-half discussion of the secretary's week in Munich.

Connally's visit is seen as an effort to assure European financial officials worried over the dollar glut occurring in their countries since the first of the year.

The record dollar flow was triggered by lower interest rates in the United States in comparison to those in Europe. As a result, West Germany devalued its currency relative to the dollar.

Several other European countries then revalued their currencies and the purchasing power of dollars in Europe lost some strength.

Although the crisis has calmed, officials in Washington say the basic causes have not been removed: continuing high deficit in the U.S. balance of payments, the existence of some $50 billion in U.S. currency still overseas, and the disparity in interest rates between the United States and Europe.

Connally also met Thursday with Valery Giscard d'Estaing, the French finance minister, in a discussion of the monetary crisis.

Although the crisis did not affect France directly, D'Estaing said he expected the dollar would soon return to its fixed rate of value with other currencies.

SALT Development Is Watched Closely

President Nixon's dramatic, if somewhat vague, announcement Thursday that the United States and the Soviet Union have agreed to get the Strategic Arms Limitation Talks (SALT) off dead center, could result in reverberations felt all the way to Sedalia.

Terming the agreement at Vienna a "significant development in breaking the deadlock" in the SALT talks, Nixon indicated that both sides would concentrate immediately on reaching an agreement to limit anti-ballistic missiles.

In the language that Sedalians have come to understand, that means Safeguard.

It is obviously too early to tell what, if any, effect the SALT breakthrough will have on the administration's immediate Safeguard plans. Two ABM sites in North Dakota and Montana are currently under construction, and work is scheduled to begin here by late summer or early fall.

If both nations agree to a freeze on all ABM construction pending a treaty agreement, the work presumably would come to a halt.

It would appear more likely, however, that construction will continue, perhaps at a slower pace, to at least maintain the credibility of the ABM cards held by both sides.

The Soviet Union has made various ABM control proposals at SALT, ranging from limiting construction to a "thin" system designed to protect a few installations, to one restricted to only the respective capitals, Washington and Moscow.

Up to now, the Nixon administration has rejected an ABM-only approach, insisting that the talks should include both offensive and defensive nuclear weapons.

Nixon's announcement Thursday, however, would indicate a softening of this position, since the negotiators at Vienna are to concentrate first on reaching an ABM agreement.

Realizing that negotiating with the Russians can be an exercise in patience and exasperation, Sedalians will be especially interested in the fruits of this new direction for SALT.

Go Ahead on Theater

The formation Monday of the Sedalia Community Theater and the election of a board are the encouraging first steps toward reactivating a vital community theater in the city.

Not one to drag its feet, the board has already tentatively set a local play for July 15-17. Chances are this will be an outdoor production, possibly in Liberty Park.

No one who has worked in community theater has any illusions about the tremendous amount of hard work required of all participants, from stage crews, to set designers and makers to the director and actors themselves.

The organizers of the Sedalia

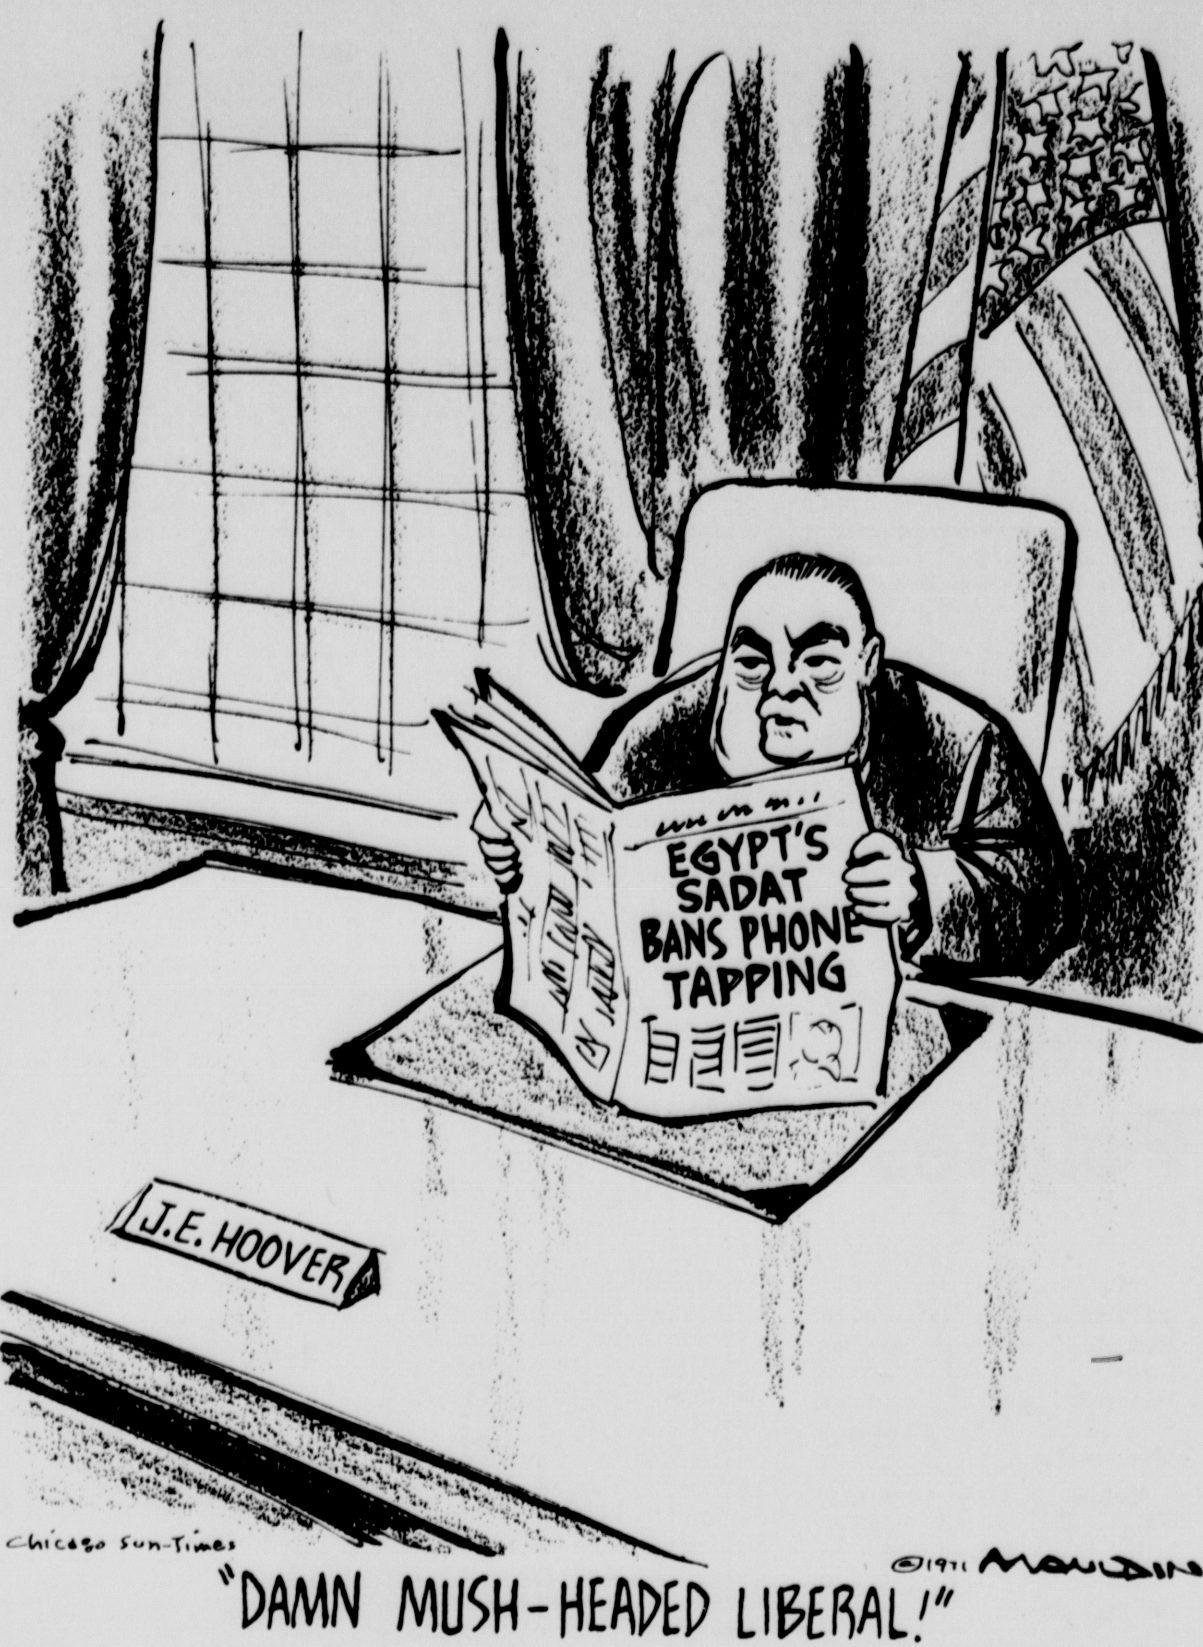

Community Theater bring considerable experience to the task, and appear eager to pitch in and make it a success.

If community theater is a lot of work, it is also a lot of fun, as many Sedalians recall from the city's last effort in this area back in the 50's.

And that is something the entire city can look forward to participating in.

"DAMN MUSH-HEADED LIBERAL!"

By JACK ANDERSON

WASHINGTON — State Secretary Bill Rogers was spurred on his recent Mideast peace mission by dramatic evidence that fighting would break out the moment that diplomacy stopped.

Just before his departure, detailed intelligence reached Washington of the imminence of renewed warfare.

The Israelis have been itching to break up Egypt's military concentration on the west bank of the Suez ever since anti-aircraft missiles were moved into the true zone.

It was all the U.S. could do to keep Israel from launching a pre-emptive strike against Egypt after President Sadat refused to renew the cease-fire in February. Only a solemn Washington warning that Israel would lose its U.S. support kept the Israelis in their bunkers.

The Egyptians likewise have been preparing for a resumption of the fighting. My associate Joe Spear reports from Cairo that the Soviets have shipped some of their latest equipment to Egypt.

This includes SU-11, twin-jet interceptors which aren't even operational in the Russian air force, also MIG-23 fighters able to soar at three times the speed of sound. These planes, so new they haven't been seen in operation by Russia's European satellites, can out-fly anything in the Israeli air force.

This disturbs the policymakers in Washington, however, more than it does the State Department's man in Cairo, Don Bergus. The new planes are so highly classified, he pointed out to Spear, that the Russians can't risk losing one over Israel. This limits them strictly to defense.

Bergus described the new equipment as "a good morale booster" for the Arabs.

Merry-Go-Round

Mideast War Fear Prompted Mission

also Egypt as "a good training ground" for the Russians. The desert climate and semi-combat conditions, he said, provide the Russians with "a good place to put their new planes through the paces."

Joe Spear also confirmed the report, first published in this space, that the Soviets are supplying and training an Egyptian amphibious force. Since there isn't much opportunity for amphibious operations on the desert, its only possible purpose would be to cross the Suez for an assault upon the Sinai.

But again, Bergus is unimpressed. "Yes," he told Spear, "the Russians have trained an amphibious unit, and the training is still going on. But it's a half-baked effort which is intended as a morale booster for the Egyptian army. There's an outside chance they might slip into the Sinai, blow up something, raise the flag and take a few pictures. But it would be more for morale than any military purpose."

The danger of an outbreak in the volatile Mideast, however, is considered in Washington to be serious. The State Department, therefore, is maneuvering anxiously to keep the negotiations going.

Bergus feels good about the possibility of an interim agreement to reopen the Suez Canal. "I begin vaguely through the mist to see the outlines of a good bet," he told Spear.

Egypt wants the canal open for the revenues it would bring in. If Israeli shipping could use the canal, Israel would also like it open. The Russians probably have the most to gain, since the canal would link up the Soviet fleets in the Mediterranean Sea, Arabian Sea, Persian Gulf and Indian Ocean.

Only the U.S. has more to lose than to gain from a reopening of the canal. But for the sake of peace in the Mideast, the U.S. is taking the lead in seeking an agreement.

Postal Politics — Abraham Lincoln, who has received top billing on U.S. stamps for more than a century, is a victim of the southern strategy. The old five-cent postal card with his portrait has been replaced by a new six-cent card picturing Paul Revere. And the 25-cent Lincoln international stamp is being dropped entirely. The Nixon administration's decision to expunge Lincoln from the mails may seem curious, since he is the patron saint of the Republican party. But the great rail splitter actually got the axe from Postmaster General Winton Blount, who is a Southerner first and a Republican second. In Blount's native Alabama, where he is preparing to run for the Senate in 1972, Lincoln is still a loser.

Hidden Contributions — The Citizens' Research Foundation, after tracing 1968 campaign contributions through the political maze, named the sugar daddies who had shelled out the big political dough. Most had tried to hide their contributions. But the foundation received an unexpected response from William Benton, publisher of the Encyclopaedia Britannica. "I find," he wrote, "that your report lists me for a total of $17,500. My actual total was over $50,000. Can it be that you missed as badly in compiling the gifts of others? If so, the amount of political contributions is far greater than the compilations in your report would indicate."

Declaration's Signing

The Declaration of Independence, adopted on July 4, 1776, was not signed that day as is popularly believed. The original document was prepared and signed by John Hancock as president of Congress on Aug. 2, 1776 and many signatures were added weeks later.

'Jellyfish' Mike Can Be a Real Shark

By CARL T. ROWAN

WASHINGTON — One of these years historians will go nuts trying to make some lasting judgments about Sen. Mike Mansfield.

For the professorial Montanan is surely one of the most enigmatic characters ever to hold the powerful post of Senate majority leader.

For weeks Mansfield projects an image of jellyfish philosopher, contributing heavily to the widespread view that the Democratic party lacks strong, driving leadership.

Then, a propos of almost nothing, the jellyfish turns to shark. Mansfield gets his back up on one of his pet issues and becomes the Senate brawler, taking on the President and all the helpers the White House can assemble.

Mansfield has been stewing for years over the $14 billion a year that Uncle Sam spends to keep a sprawling military apparatus in Western Europe—long after the late Charles de Gaulle began to pursue European detente, and long after the French, Germans, British, and others became capable of paying for their own defense.

But when Mansfield deplored the continued presence of 300,000 U.S. troops in Europe a quarter-century after the end of World War II, it always sounded like a dry college lecture, or as if he were dictating an article for Foreign Affairs.

Then, bang! Mansfield asks the Senate to vote immediately for the mandatory pullback of 150,000 of those Europe-based GIs.

Suddenly the administration was reminded that, when he chooses to be, Mansfield is anything but a Milquetoast more suited to an ivory tower than to Capitol Hill. He sent President Nixon and his aides scurrying to line up former Presidents Johnson and Truman and a host of once-renowned architects of U.S. cold war strategy in a massive White House effort to defeat the Mansfield proposal.

What motivates Mansfield?

Democratic party leaders recently browbeat the networks, trying to get free television time in which to respond to an address by Nixon.

But there was Mansfield, undercutting them publicly with textbook talk about how the President has rights to the networks that the opposition ought not have.

Democratic Presidential hopefuls Ed Muskie and George McGovern recently socked it to the FBI for what they call illegal surveillance and abuses of the rights of citizens; other Democrats call for the resignation of J. Edgar Hoover.

But Majority Leader Mansfield? He surprised newsmen at breakfast by saying that if he were President he wouldn't replace Hoover (but he refuses to say why).

Then, a few days later, after it is revealed that FBI agents ushered a wired-for-sound informer into the office of Rep. John Dowdy (D-Tex.), Mansfield called for a probe of FBI activities.

How does a man who seems so wishy-washy on so many issues suddenly strike out to make changes that the administration says would wreck the North Atlantic Treaty Organization?

Perhaps Mansfield is more wrought up about European policy than he is on most other issues.

There can be no doubt that it is absurd for us to still have 300,000 troops and 175,000 dependents in Europe.

When we are racking up a balance-of-payments deficit at the record rate of $22 billion a year, how can it make sense that hundreds of millions of that deficit flow from our expenditures to defend countries like West Germany whose economies are stronger than ours?

When we cannot afford schools, hospitals, food for Americans who are in

Personal

Slants

By DOUG KNEIBERT

You see them on almost any country road or highway around Sedalia: weathered and in various stages of collapse, yet stubbornly holding on, as if reluctant to finally concede that their time has passed.

What is it about these old barns that bespeaks a kind of sadness? I've explored a few of them over the past few weeks, each time with that feeling.

One day recently I stopped at an old place east of Sedalia to explore a grand old barn that looked like it wouldn't be around for too many more years. An adjacent building had already expired in a heap.

As I step in through the wide double-door entrance, I disturb only a burrowing groundhog, who scurries off to safer cover, and a flock of barn swallows that dart down from the loft and out.

All the rest is silence. A still-strong manila rope, once used to hoist bales of hay to the loft, sways gently in the breeze. It was also an excellent rope for a boy to swing on.

A feed bin, still prudently secured with a rusting latch, yields only an old scoop and rotting feed sacks.

As my eyes grow accustomed to the shaded, dank interior, I see the sturdy, rough-hewn beams that supported the massive roof, and the equally careful workmanship that went into the loft and its supporting members. No prefabs here.

A faded government notice testifies that the bin had been inspected and sealed in accordance with, etc., etc. Alas, does a barn now standing pre-date federal farm subsidies?

The barn's east side housed cattle pens, feed trough and a loading ramp, the latter straddling the uneven, part manure, part dirt floor.

How long ago was this barn alive, its loft filled with freshly-mown hay, its silence punctuated by cattle bells and animal sounds? Ten years, 15, 20?

My reverie is broken by the vacuum pop of a passing semi-trailer truck, serving a world now far removed from the life of this barn. I bid it farewell, with the unspoken hope that it will still be there next week, next year.

These barns are going fast in this nation of ours, castoffs of that most impersonal and devastating of all forces — economic reality. They are being replaced by farming methods allied to the corporation, rather than the family farm.

By now they say the trend is irreversible. Some agriculture economists predict there may be only 200,000 farms left in America by 1980.

But when that day comes, we will have lost something infinitely precious in our way of life.

Oh, my! Five o'clock in the morning is awful early, but it is the time set for the official opening of Sedalia's newest project, the Sedalia Public Golf Course, which has been a foggy dream for several years, but was brought through to clear weather when the Sedalia business men in co-operation with the Sedalia Chamber of Commerce went out and put it over. The course, located just one mile and one quarter south of Sedalia, on Highway 65, out in the "wide open spaces," is in the "pink," or is it "green" of perfection, awaiting only the approval of the golfing public.

Ann Landers

Parent's Bad Habits Passed On To Kids

Dear Ann Landers: My husband and I are undecided. Will you please help us come to grips with the problem? We live in a middle-class housing development. We mind our own business and have a pleasant relationship with everyone on the block. But our neighbors are not our social friends.

The family down the street has four children. Three times in the past six weeks they have sent one of their children over here to "borrow" a couple of cigarettes. My husband smokes. I do not. We have always given the cigarettes to the child and not thought too much about it, but after the third time we are beginning to wonder if we should continue this practice. There's a drug store three blocks from here which stays open until midnight. What is your opinion? — Free Cigarette Machine.

Dear Free: The worst part of this scene is the example the parents are setting for their children. It is unfortunate when children see their parents so enslaved by the tobacco habit that they must borrow a cigarette to get through the night. It is also a nuisance. I'd say three times is enough. From now on say "no."

Dear Ann Landers: I am happy you reprinted your Twelve Rules For Raising Children. As a grandmother who did well with her own brood and is now watching her daughters and sons do even better, may I add a 13th rule?

If a mother or father lack the imagination or will not take the time to plan something interesting and instructive for their children to do, they have no right to object to whatever the kids think up themselves. — Kansas Granny.

Dear Granny: Right you are. "An idle mind is the devil's workshop. Idle hands are his tools." Let's make it a baker's dozen. Thanks for writing.

Dear Ann Landers: I am a 13-year-old girl who has a problem that is bothering me a lot. I have no idea what to do about it. I hope you will give me a solution.

Lois has been my best friend for seven years but recently she has developed a bad habit. She comes into my house, sits with me for about ten minutes, then off she goes to the kitchen and helps herself to whatever she sees. I wouldn't dream of doing such a thing — even in my aunt's house. I think it's colossal nerve.

This afternoon, Lois fixed herself a triple-decker sandwich and drank half a quart of milk. I kept my mouth shut because I didn't know what to say. After she left I was mad at myself for keeping quiet. Would I be a bad hostess if I told her I didn't like it? — Chicken Friend.

Dear Chick: Lois has no manners and I think you might teach her something. It is extremely rude to go into the kitchen of a friend and help oneself to food. The next time Lois heads that way, stop her and explain that you plan to serve cookies and milk a little later and that she should wait.

Dear Ann Landers: Our daughter is 23. She married a lazy, no-good rat who is already cheating on her. She is six months pregnant. Should we encourage her to get a divorce? We don't think it makes any sense for a young girl to live with a mistake forever. Please rush your advice. — Mother Who Saw It Coming.

Dear Mother: Keep quiet. It is her mistake and her no-good, lazy rat. It should also be her decision, since she will have to abide by the consequences.

Reveal Ravaged India

SOBROOM, India (AP) — On the western side of the Feni river, the villages in East Pakistan are destroyed and deserted.

On the eastern side in India, hundreds of thousands of refugees driven from their homes by the civil war in East Pakistan are packed into makeshift camps.

Sobroom and Ramgarh, just 100 yards across the river, both had populations of 5,000 until two months ago. Now Sobroom has about 20,000 residents, most of them refugees, and Ramgarh has almost no one left.

From March 25, when civil war broke out in East Pakistan, until May 2 Ramgarh was controlled by the followers of secessionist leader Sheikh Mujibur Rahman. Then the Pakistani army moved in and, according to eyewitnesses, shelled the city and machine gunned anyone who had not fled across the river.

Today, visitors to Sobroom see no sign of life in Ramgarh, except for a few stray dogs and an occasional soldier on patrol.

Only the district headquarters, occupied by the army, and the charred ruins of shops and homes remain. Many coconut, palm and mango trees are without leaves—burned away by fires that swept the city during the army attack. Refugees are still pouring into Sobroom from outlying areas and officials do not know where they are going to be able to put them all.

The town's only two schools have both been closed indefinitely to provide room for the refugees.

Others are housed under large tents where people live so close to one another there is no free space.

Tripura state, with only 4,200 square miles of territory, had a population of 1.5 million until two months ago. Now it has 2.1 million.

The heavily forested state is normally short of food, and imports about 6,000 tons a month to insure a minimum subsistence for its regular residents. Now it needs 13,000 tons a month.

Indian and foreign newsmen taken on a three-day tour of refugee camps saw similar overcrowding at Petrapole, on the other side of East Pakistan about 60 miles northeast of Calcutta.

By official Indian estimates, which a visiting U.N. team said it would accept, about 2.6 million East Pakistanis have entered four Indian border states in the past seven weeks, causing social and economic problems that appear to defy solution at the moment.

Aside from the immediate task of finding adequate housing and enough food and other supplies—which the Indian government says will cost about $266 million over the next six months—officials have expressed concern that communal violence might erupt between Hindus and Moslems within the 300 relief camps.

To guard against this Hindus and Moslems, traditional enemies on the subcontinent, are being segregated.

Bank Surrenders

Charter To State

DIAMOND, Mo. (AP) — The Diamond Bank's charter has been surrendered to the state in the first self-liquidation of a Missouri bank since the 1930s.

T. Bruce Douthitt, 82, cashier, said there was an ultimatum from the state that the bank buy Federal Deposit Insurance Corp. protection and hire new management, or sell.

A proposed sale of the bank to the First National Bank of Joplin collapsed, Douthitt said, so the stockholders chose to liquidate rather than pay out $100,000 for FDIC protection.

O. W. Reser, supervising examiner of the state division of finance, said Thursday in Jefferson City there is no indication of insolvency or wrongdoing.

Reser said examiners in Diamond expect to give depositors every cent of their money at a time to be set later.

Founded in 1904 by J. D. Brookshire, a hardware merchant, the bank had been operated by his widow, Lois, since 1926.

Work Load Snowballs On Senate

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — The Missouri Senate was reminded Thursday that the session is drawing to a close and the working schedule in the final weeks will increase in proportion to the amount of work ahead.

Sen. William J. Cason, D-Clinton, majority leader, said senators should be ready for a Thursday afternoon session next week to make up for the Memorial Day recess.

In the following days before the end of the session June 15, Cason said, members might be working seven days a week with morning and evening sessions.

Committee work has nearly ended and the Senate journal will be slimmed down, Cason said, by striking bills on the Senate amendment calendar.

A final reminder that time is drawing short came from Sen. J. F. Patterson, D-Caruthersville, as he scheduled an executive session Monday for his budget control committee.

His committee gets all bills requiring expenditures of more than $50,000, or any measure that would reduce state revenue. It has a life or death power over such bills.

Patterson said the committee was meeting at the request of many members and would consider the requests for new expenditures in light of information at hand on the state's financial condition.

She Has Pair Of Pet Peeves

By POLLY CRAMER

DEAR POLLY — I am so pleased to see the new addition to your column called Pet Peeves. I have a couple. I particularly like dresses with white collars or trim but am reluctant to buy them because of the cleaning problem. Make-up and perspiration make such trim require frequent washing and since most of this is stitched on it means the dress has to be completely cleaned or washed just to freshen the trim. Why can't the manufacturers BASTE white trim or collars on dresses so they could be easily removed for washing and then be basted back on?

Also, why is it no longer possible to purchase separate dress collars and dummies? I would like to think a dress manufacturer would read this and take the hint. — MRS. O. E. R.

Polly's Problem

DEAR POLLY — Camping is such fun except for the messy clean-up. I do hope someone can tell me how to cut down on the black that forms on pans and coffee pots from butane camp stoves. How does one remove it easily? — SHIRLEY

DEAR POLLY — Do tell Mrs. M. S. that I removed a brown cigarette burn from my vinyl floor by rubbing the spot with one of the whitening toothpastes applied with a dampened terry cloth. Brisk rubbing with this completely removed the brown. — POLLY H.

DEAR POLLY and Mrs. M. S. — I had a cigarette burn on my white vinyl floor that made me ill to look at it. I tried several things, including bleach, but nothing worked until I took a soap-filled steel wool pad, put some household cleanser on it and went to work. It took about 15 minutes to do the job but I got results. The vinyl was unharmed and the shine is still there. Just keep rubbing with the cleanser and slightly dampened pad. — GLADYS

DEAR GIRLS — One vinyl manufacturer who suggests practically this same treatment recommends the use of a water-base liquid wax or vinyl dressing after the spot is removed. — POLLY

Health Diet Problems Vary With Conditions

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

Dear Dr. Lamb—You stated in your column that it is best to avoid eating too much saturated fat and that the diet should contain mostly fish, chicken, turkey, vegetables, skim milk or low-fat fortified milk, polyunsaturated margarine and limited amounts of lean beef. More recently, in a column on gout, you said it was wise to limit the amount of fish, fowl and meat in the diet and get more of the protein from skim milk, egg whites, and low-calorie (low-fat) cottage cheese, vegetables and cereals. This seems to be a contradiction of what is best. Is it best to eat or eliminate from the diet fish, chicken and turkey? Also, do you personally limit your intake of cholesterol and saturated fats? Do you ever eat egg yolks, pork or food made with saturated fats?

Dear Reader — You are combining answers to two different medical problems. The most common disease problem that our civilization has is heart and vascular disease caused by fatty deposits in the arteries to the heart, brain and elsewhere in the body. To prevent this problem most heart specialists feel you should limit the amount of fat and cholesterol in the diet. It is recommended that people use skim milk and nonfat dry milk powder, fish, fryer chicken (without the skin is better) and young turkey, with a greater abundance in the diet of vegetables, fruit and cereal. Whole milk, butter, margarine made from saturated fats, or hardened margarines, cheese (other than uncreamed cottage cheese) excessively fat meat of any type, such as bacon, and cholesterol-laden foods, such as egg yolks and organ meats like brain, should be used sparingly.

Now the person with gout has trouble metabolizing animal protein. It is not just a question of his fat intake. For this reason certain types of protein also have to be limited in the diet. This is why it is probably better for patients with gout to limit the amount of fish and chicken they eat.

The use of skim milk, egg whites and uncreamed cottage cheese, vegetables, cereals and fruit is recommended.

Even with a strict diet, many gout patients still have too much uric acid (the end product of certain proteins) in the blood. These people need medicine to control their gout problem.

Yes, I certainly do limit my cholesterol intake. Sometimes three or four months pass without eating an egg yolk, even in food preparation. I almost never eat pork and make it a point to eat low fat foods. I am 5-10 and my weight varies from 135 to 140 pounds. Most of my fellow physicians consider me lean. The fat ones think I am emaciated.

Central Is Seeking 7th Outdoor Title

For four Smith-Cotton senior track stars, Mark Hewett, Paul Klover, Bill Morrow and Mike Heembrock, their high school track careers come to an end Saturday in Columbia at the Missouri State High School Activities Association's Class L outdoor state track finals.

Other Smith-Cotton tracksters who will be vying in the meet are Fred Knight, Bob Finland, Rick Carter, Aaron Hartt, Robert Mayes, David Moore, Jim Estes, Steve Cable, Larry Hausam, David Knott, Jack Cook, and C. E. Baldwin. Smith-Cotton will be represented in 12 of the meet's 17 events.

Favorites in the field for the teams' top spot include Kansas City Central, St. Louis Soldan, St. Louis Northwest, Kansas

City Southeast and Oak Park. At least eight meet records are in danger of being broken as Kansas City Central will be seeking their seventh straight outdoor team title.

With Ken Randle leading the way, the Blue Eagles rate the top nod in the meet.

Randle ran :48.1 in the 440 and :21.8 in the 220 during the district qualifications in addition to anchoring the Central mile relay team. Randle led Central's baton crew to the fastest time ever recorded by a Missouri one-mile relay team with a clocking of 3:16.8.

Hurdlers Larry Fultz and Rousell Williams, both of Central, have been clocked in times of :19.5 and :19.6 respectively in the lows.

Fultz has set the pace for Central in the highs as well with a clocking of :14.5.

Earl Hayes should score points in the triple jump for the Blue Eagles, as well.

Yet another standout on the Central squad is Harry Armstrong, whose season's best in the 440 is :49.3.

A total of 15 men return to this year's meet, who placed in the 1970 outdoor meet, including Paul Klover of Smith-Cotton in the 440.

Randle is the defending champion in the 440, however, Klover and Larry Butler of Carthage will be out to challenge him.

The field events will begin at 10 p.m. Saturday, as well as the opening preliminaries for the track events in Columbia's Memorial Stadium. Finals in the track division begin at 1 p.m.

Faster, Farther, Higher

Pepin's Thinclads Set 14 Standards

It has been a profitable two years for Smith-Cotton varsity track coach Gary Pepin. In those two years, his teams have brought him one indoor conference championship, two outdoor conference championships, as well as a host of other track honors.

In all the Tigers have collected six first-place trophies during the past campaign.

But most striking of all are the tremendous number of varsity track records that have fallen by the wayside.

Nine new varsity marks were shattered this year; five other new standards were established last year, that are still on the books.

The 14 new records set in the two seasons represents the largest percentage of the 20 marks listed in outdoor track and field.

Senior Paul Klover holds five individual records, as well as part ownership of the two-mile relay standard, while Mark Hewett has set three new marks and shares one relay record.

But it is easier to talk about the five records that are still standing.

The oldest record listed is that of Maurice Griffin in the high jump that dates all the way back to 1929 at 6'2."

However, Randy Bloess has tied that mark in regular competition and Fred Knight has gone 6'3" in practice.

Charles Van Dyne still holds the 120-yard high hurdle standard at :14.9; that was set in 1956.

In that same year Norris Kelly established the current shot put record with a toss of 54'6 1/2," but sophomore Aaron Hartt threatens to set a new mark. With two seasons to go in high school competition for the Tigers, Hartt's best toss is 52'9 3/4." That throw came during a dual meet with Columbia at Jennie Jaynes Stadium this year. It is the stadium record at the present time.

Con Rees established discus mark in 1965 with a throw of 156'3 1/2."

The 1969 mile relay team of Doogs, Cain, Hunt and Cooper set the mark in that event with a clocking of 3:27.7.

The other record that was set in 1965 was in the mile medley relay. The teams during Pepin's reign at S-C have not had a chance to attack that one, since no competition has been held in that event.

The mark that currently stands is 3:41.0.

Listed below are the 15 records set during the past two years at Smith-Cotton.

100-yard dash — Paul Klover, :09.9 (1970).

220-yard dash — Paul Klover, :21.9 (1970).

440-yard dash — Paul Klover, :49.3 (1970).

880-yard run — Paul Klover, 1:59.0 (1971).

Mile run — Paul Klover, 4:29.6 (1971).

Two-mile run — David Moore, 9:57.4 (1971).

180-yard low hurdles — Mark Hewett, :20.0 (1971).

880-yard relay — (Van Dyne, Parker, Hausam, Hewett), 1:33.5 (1970).

440-yard relay — (Blaine, Cook, Wells, Lamb), :45.8 (1971).

Two-mile relay — (Klover, Mayes, Moore, Heembrock), 8:19.4 (1971).

Mile relay — (Doogs, Cain, Hunt, Cooper), 1:37.7 (1970).

Sprint medley — Mark Hewett, 22:1" (1971).

Triple jump — Bob Finland, 43'1" (1971).

Pole vault — Mark Hewett, 13'6" (1971).

Rodgers In Trouble

Sophomore flunker Johnny Rodgers of Nebraska pleaded guilty Thursday to a felony charge in Lincoln, Neb. Rodgers was a star as a sophomore last fall in the Big Eight Conference. (UPI)

Turbine Too Restricted

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. (AP) — A turbine car is back at the Indianapolis Motor Speedway this year.

Whisper-quiet, silken-smooth, and slow.

Too slow, says designer-builder Howard Millican, to qualify under normal circumstances.

"It's possible we could get in," he said. "But only if we were among the first 33 qualifiers and it rained, or something else happened, to keep anyone else from qualifying."

Then why bother?

—It's helping prove that U.S. Auto Club restrictions on turbines are too severe to allow them to compete.

—It's an educational experience, for Millican and the turbine engineers who help him in their spare time as a labor of love.

—It could be the wave of the future—and Millican could ride the crest.

The turbine cars burst on the scene in 1967, when Parnelli Jones set 18 track records in the car dubbed the "pregnant whale."

In 1968, turbines were back in wedge-shaped Lotus cars. Joe Leonard set qualifying records in his STP Lotus turbine that year which weren't cracked until this year.

Piston engine advocates screamed that the turbines were unfair, and USAC's rulesmakers agreed.

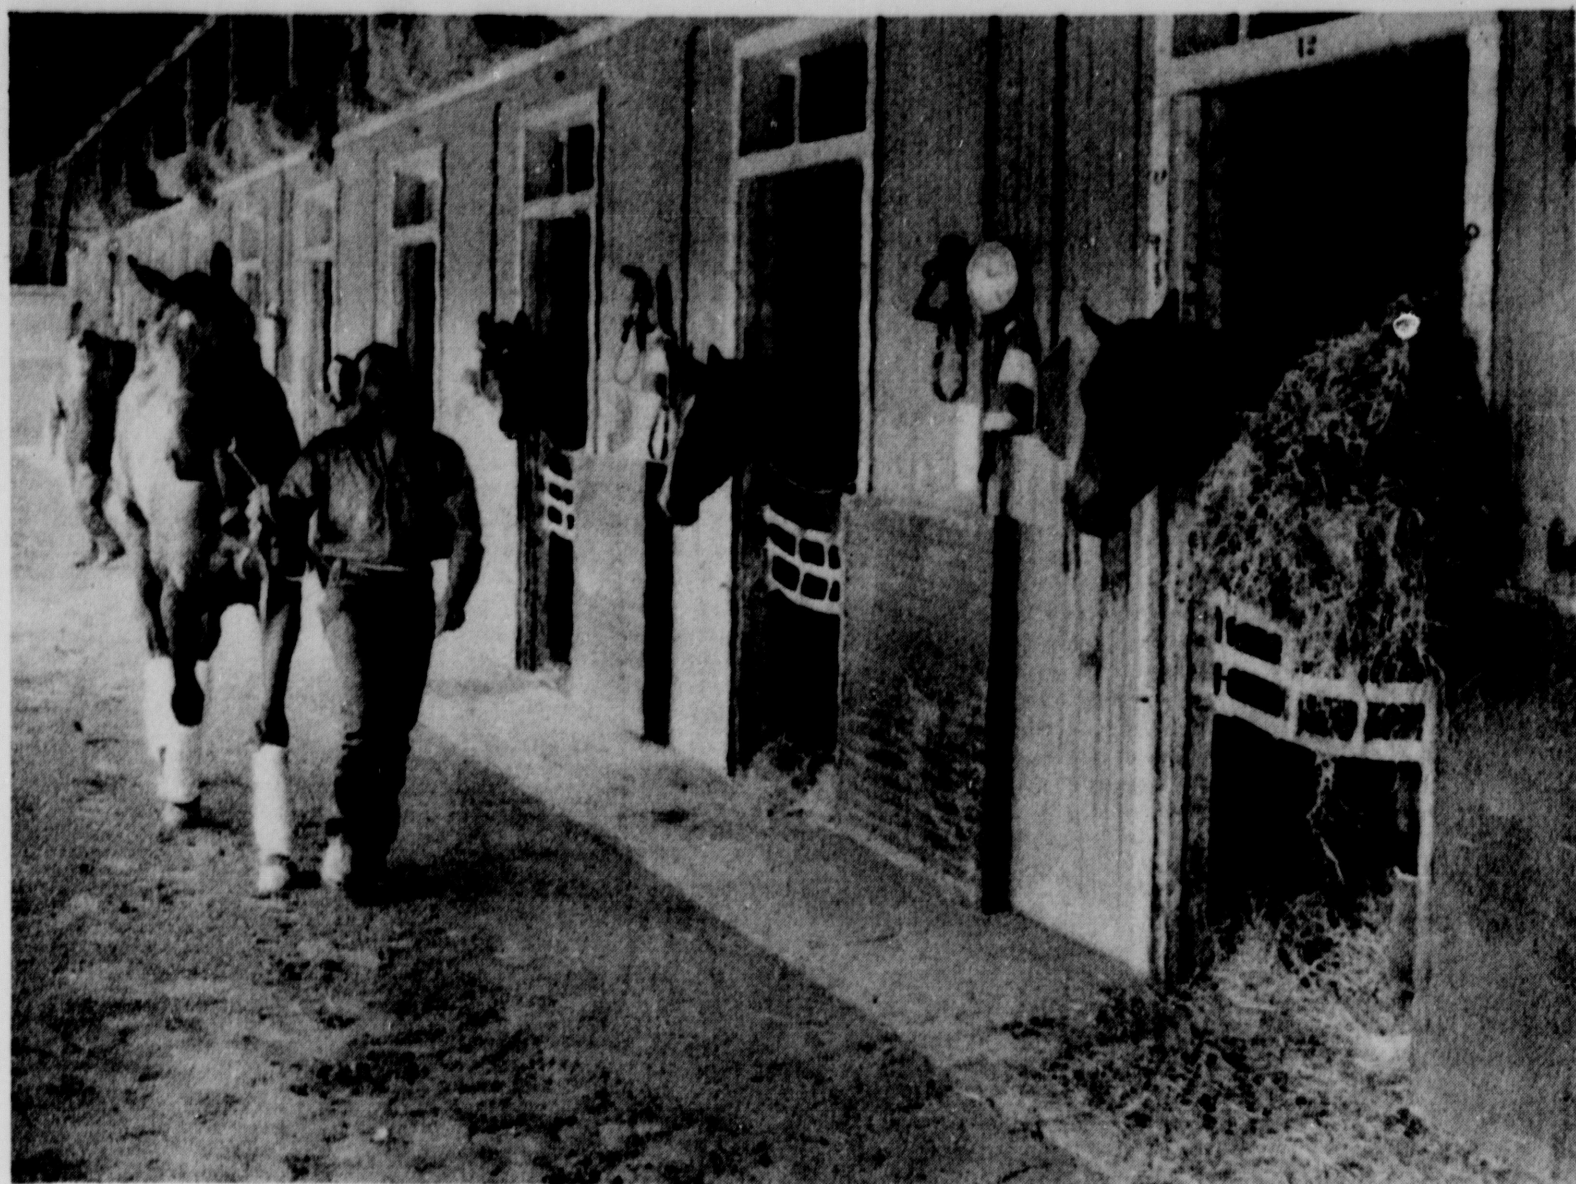

USAC handicapped them by restricting their air inlet area. It was sort of like putting a Volkswagen carburetor on a Cadillac. The turbines could run, but they would run out of breath at high speeds.

Millican decided the turbines still had potential. He got an old Gerhardt chassis, rebuilt it completely, and installed an Allison 250 helicopter turbine. The car was entered on the speedway in 1970, but failed to get up enough speed to qualify.

Allison engineers, working evenings and on their days off, helped develop the engine. Millican worked on the chassis. Sponsor Jack Adams footed the bill to enter the car in USAC championship races.

"On the one-mile tracks, we are fairly competitive—due mainly to our special tires," Millican said. "Our corner speed on one-mile tracks is equal to or better than anyone there."

"But on the longer tracks, we just don't have the power to get up to their speeds on the straights."

Parade of the King

As the other horses watch carefully, the king of the Kentucky Derby and the Preakness, Canonero II, walks past the stables at Belmont Park in New York. Canonero

II will probably be the favorite in the June 5 running of the Belmont Stakes.

(UPI)

Practice for Belmont

Canonero in New York

NEW YORK (AP) — The big bay colt walked into stall 14 at Belmont Park and promptly got down to roll in the wood shavings on the floor.

"He does that when he feels good," said Groom Pedro Quintero of Canonero II, who arrived at Belmont Thursday for his shot at thoroughbred racing's fabled and elusive Triple Crown.

The shot for Canonero, which means gunner in Spanish, will come June 5 with the running of the Belmont Stakes.

The arrival here of Canonero II, come-from-behind winner of the Kentucky Derby and the front running winner of the Preakness, caused quite a bit of activity around barn 7A, where stall 14 has a yellow sign with brown lettering and a brown numeral, Canonero II, 9.

The No. 9 on the sign was the numeral worn in the Preakness by Canonero II, owned by Edgar Caibett of Venezuela, and anced mostly in that country. The sign is a souvenir from the Preakness.

It is doubtful there will be a No. 9 in the Belmont, as only five or six 2-year-olds are expected to oppose Canonero II.

Canonero II arrived at Balmont from Pimlico in a van which also held Quintero, and two Spanish-speaking uniformed guards.

Movie cameras whirled, still cameras clicked and newsmen bombarded an interpreter provided by the New York Racing

Canonero's Price High

MIAMI (AP) — The Venezuelan owner of Kentucky Derby and Preakness winner Canonero II wants a lot more than the $1.5 million and more a South Florida syndicate has offered for the horse, trainer Budd Lepman said Thursday.

"We didn't reach an agreement," Lepman said after a second meeting with Pedro Baptista and trainer Miguel Torrealba. "Their price is much more than I believe my group intends to pay... it's way out of line."

Lepman refused to disclose the asking price for the 3-year-old but his owner is reportedly seeking $4 million.

Another south Florida trainer, Al Winick of Delray Training Center, said late Thursday he has a group that is interested in making a "very substantial offer" but refused to disclose more details.

Canonero II was resting up for the third part of the triple crown at Belmont Park Thursday as interested horsemen dickered with Baptista about the colt's future.

Knudson, Blancas Tied For Colonial Top Spot

FORT WORTH, Tex. (AP) — George Knudson and Homero Blancas shared the first-round lead in the Colonial National Invitational Golf Tournament but much of the attention focused on a young amateur just two shots off the pace.

Ben Crenshaw, 19, a University of Texas freshman, recorded the second lowest amateur score in the 26-year history of this tourney, firing a 69 Thursday.

Canadian Knudson and Blancas, the defending champion, matched three-under-par 67s on the 7,142-yard Colonial course, playing on an ideal scoring day.

Crenshaw, golf observers say, has the same crunching tee game and deft putting stroke of Jack Nicklaus, whom the young amateur, also a blond belter, has never met. Nicklaus isn't playing here.

Crenshaw shot a one-under-par 283 last week in the Houston champions International. It would have been good for $3,800 if he played for pay instead of glory.

Carlton Spins Five-Hit Gem

ST. LOUIS (AP)—Steve Carlton found his pitching groove Thursday, and Albert "Red" Schoendienst considered doubling his longevity as St. Louis Cardinals manager.

"I hope he gets a dozen; I hope he sets a record," Schoendienst chirped after Carlton nailed the Los Angeles Dodgers 5-0 for his third 1971 shutout.

The five-hitter, boosting Carlton's record to 7-2, commemorated the setting of a record by Schoendienst as Cardinals pilot.

Since taking over in 1965, the 48-year-old onetime all-star second baseman has guided the club 6 years, 1 month and 20 days continuously.

Until games Wednesday night and Thursday against the Dodgers the old mark was 6 years, 1 month and 19 days by Branch Rickey in 1919-1925.

"No, it really doesn't seem that long," said Schoendienst, whose longevity is second to that of the Dodgers' Walter Alston among national league managers. "We've had some good times in the past, and we're going to have lots of good times in the future," he promised.

Carlton, who breezed following two previous rocky starts, warmed Schoendienst's outlook by striking out five and staying out of trouble.

It was his first complete game since stopping Montreal 1-0 on Busch Stadium Astro turf May 2, but Schoendienst came to the 6-foot-5 left-hander's defense.

"He'd only worked 7 1-3 innings in 17 days," he said. "When his coordination's off just a little it'll show up because he's so darned tall."

Dodger catcher Bill Sudakis accused Carlton of "just showing us his fast ball and daring us to hit it."

But Carlton survived the darts by limiting the Los Angeles attack to Willie Davis' single and Wes Parker's double through the first five innings.

Richie Allen and Parker singled successively with two out in the sixth before Jack Garvey fanned, and Parker collected a single for his third hit in the ninth.

Singles by Joe Cardenal and Joe Hague drove home the only two Cardinal runs Carlton needed in the first inning off hard-luck Dodger right-hander Bill Singer (2-8).

Ted Sizemore's sacrifice fly added another in the fourth, Lou Brock doubled home one more in the seventh and Hague capped a seven-hit attack by homering off Singer in the eighth.

Phils Drop Mets, 1-0

By KEN RAPPOPORT
Associated Press Sports Writer

The word was out among the New York Mets: Get Wise. But Rick Wise was just another untouchable for Manager Gil Hodges' Skid Kids.

"We're all right," said Hodges after Philadelphia silenced New York 1-0 on six hits Thursday night for the Mets' fifth straight loss.

They don't look all right. Before the spinout, the Mets were hurtling in high gear with a hot winning percentage and three-game lead in the National League East. Now they're a game behind front-running Pittsburgh and only percentage points in front of third-place St. Louis.

"We've just hit a snag," said Hodges calmly, exuding the posture of a winner. "Fortunately, we're in a position to overcome it."

Position in baseball is everything, but pitching and hitting also play a part. And the Mets have been getting one without the other, when they needed both during the current cold streak.

After the Mets won the first two games of the Pittsburgh series last weekend to take their 14th of 17 games, they lost 4-2 to the Pirates Sunday. Then followed 4-3 and 8-6 losses to Atlanta and 4-1 and 1-0 to Philadelphia on the short road swing.

In Thursday's other National League Games, San Francisco whipped Chicago 8-7; St. Louis turned back Los Angeles 5-0; Cincinnati beat Pittsburgh 5-4; San Diego dropped Houston 4-2 and Montreal cooled off Atlanta 4-3 in 14 innings.

Gary Gentry, who pitched one of the strongest games in the Mets' Black Week, made one mistake—a gopher ball to Deron Johnson for the only run in the second inning.

"One pitch, one swing," said Hodges, signifying the difference in the game.

Willie McCovey walloped a three-run homer in the ninth to pull San Francisco from behind. The Giants used three-run innings in the eighth and ninth to wipe out a four-run Chicago lead.

The Cubs, who had two homers by Ron Santo, led 6-2 in the eighth when the Giants scored three times on pinch-hitter Fran Healy's bases-filled double. Then McCovey slammed his ninth circuit shot of the season following walks to Tito Fuentes and Willie Mays.

Ty Cline had started the Reds' rally with a single and eventually crossed the plate on Perez' single. Pittsburgh had grabbed a 3-2 lead in the top of the seventh when pinch-hitter Vic Davilillo singled home a run.

Two-Run Blast

Horton Ignites 'Bomb' Against Indians in 11th

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
Associated Press Sports Writer

An anonymous bomb threat was telephoned to Cleveland Stadium during the sixth inning of Thursday night's game between the Indians and the Detroit Tigers. When the explosion finally went off in the 11th inning it was signed by Willie Horton.

The Detroit outfielder slugged a two-run homer, giving the Tigers a 5-3 victory over the Indians.

Elsewhere in the American League, Boston whipped the New York Yankees 5-2, Oakland trounced Milwaukee 7-3, and California shaded Minnesota 1-0. Baltimore and Washington were rained out after three innings with the Orioles leading 1-0 while the Chicago White Sox and Kansas City Royals were not scheduled.

Horton, a right-handed hitter, drilled an outside pitch from lefty Steve Mingori over the right-center field fence following a leadoff walk to Jim Northrup.

Earlier, Norm Cash homered for Detroit and Vada Pinson for Cleveland and the Tigers held a 3-2 lead with two out in the ninth and unbeaten Joe Coleman shooting for his fifth triumph. But Coleman walked Fred Stanley and Chuck Hinton and reliever Tom Timmerman gave up a run-scoring single to Ted Ford.

Still, Coleman's 4-0 record represents the "best start in the majors" for the plucky right-hander, who suffered a fractured skull when struck by a line drive during spring training.

The Red Sox exploded against New York's Stan Bahnsen with one out in the first inning on a walk, Carl Yastrzemski's run-scoring double and Rico Petrocelli's third home run in four games. George Scott cracked a two-run homer in the eighth to nail down the Sox' 19th victory in 24 games and boost their lead in the AL East to three games over the Orioles.

Boston plays four games over the weekend in Baltimore.

The Yankees got their runs off starter Bill Lee in the sixth but Bob Bolin came on to retire pinch hitter Curt Blefary with the bases loaded and stopped New York the rest of the way.

Oakland's Chuck Dobson continued his comeback by limiting Milwaukee to six hits in eight innings and Dave Duncan and Mike Epstein hit solo homers for the A's. Johnny Briggs' eighth-inning homer spoiled Dobson's shutout bid.

Clyde Wright, who missed a turn due to tendonitis in his pitching arm, hurled a five-hit game as California edged Minnesota. John Stephenson singled home the only run the eighth off reliever Ray Corbin following Sandy Alomar's leadoff single, Alex Johnson's sacrifice and a walk to Tony Conigliaro.

Seek Life Guards

For Hubbard Pool

The Rev. Glenn C. Nelson, Jr., who will manage the Hubbard Park Swimming Pool this summer, is accepting applications for life guards.

At least two life guards, who can qualify for senior life saving by May 31, are needed by the opening date of the pool.

Interested persons should contact Rev. Nelson at 827-2645.

S-M Squad Downs

New Salem Baptist

Sedalia S-M topped New Salem Baptist in a non-league softball doubleheader Thursday night by scores of 5-1 and 18-1.

Gerald Abney was the winning pitcher in the opener, while Jim Steele breezed through the second contest, getting credit for the win.

Steele had four hits in the second contest, as well as striking out ten and walking only one.

Opening lead—♣ 4

By Oswald & James Jacoby

North's six no-trump is a slight overbid since 16 opposite 16 only add up to 32. However, it is the type of overbid that wins in the long run if declarer knows what he is doing.

West led a club which he felt was the lead least likely to help declarer. East won with the ace and promptly returned a heart. The moment of truth had arrived at trick two.

South knew that East would lead the heart whether or not he held the king, so a finesse would be a 50-50 proposition. He wouldn't need the finesse if spades were going to break 3-3, but that is only a 36 per cent chance. Thus, the finesse appears to be the better way to try for 12 tricks.

If you have looked at the East-West cards you will see that the finesse is wrong and spades don't break. However, South justified his partner's confidence by making the hand anyway.

He refused the finesse because there was an extra chance if he did. That chance was to find the king of hearts and the long spades in the same hand.

After taking the ace of hearts, he simply cashed all the clubs and diamonds making sure to win the last trick in his hand. Everyone was down to four cards. North held four spades. South three spades and the queen of hearts and poor West has had to throw away the king of hearts or a spade.

Leaders To Meet Again

PARIS (AP) — President Georges Pompidou and Prime Minister Edward Heath met again today to conclude a broad agreement to work for a united Europe rivaling the American and Soviet super-powers.

Pompidou after long secret talks with Heath on Thursday gave the green light for Britain's admission to the European Common Market, removing the biggest obstacle to the British candidacy. Diplomats of the two countries worked through the night to formulate a joint declaration.

The two leaders proclaimed their desire to revive the British-French entente cordiale in an exchange of toasts at a state banquet shortly before midnight Thursday.

"On many essential points," said Pompidou, "and particularly concerning the general concept of Europe, its organization and objectives, our views are sufficiently close to allow us to continue without pessimism."

Heath in reply said he was heartened "to discover in my talks with the president how close are our ideas and aspirations."

Pompidou, harking back to President Charles de Gaulle's crusade against American domination, said unity would permit Western Europe to regain "command of her own destiny" and recover "a purely European concept of civilization."

Although both stressed that much remains to be negotiated before the enlargement of the European Economic Community, Heath said he believes British entry will be settled soon and this will clear the way "for a momentous step forward" toward European unity.

For France, it will mean abandoning more than a decade of hostility toward its British neighbor.

For Britain, it will mean abandoning its 30-year-old special relationship with the United States.

For West Europeans, it should start a march toward a political confederation and the strongest trading area in the world, with a population of 250 million.

For the United States, it will spell fiercer competition for markets.

For Britain's Commonwealth partners, it threatens the collapse of their association, even though some of the former colonies can negotiate special trading links with the enlarged community.

Six nations now make up the European Economic Community, better known as the Common Market. They are France, West Germany, Italy, Belgium, the Netherlands and Luxembourg. Three other applicants — Norway, Denmark and Ireland — are lined up behind Britain, waiting for the terms of its admission to set the pattern for theirs.

The breakthrough in French policy was long in the making, according to French sources, even though it became evident suddenly.

They said De Gaulle himself realized, in 1969, that he could not establish French leadership in Western Europe and quietly suggested a new French-British dialogue to British Ambassador Christopher Soames. His idea was to loosen and widen the community with the British as senior partners alongside France and West Germany. But his initiative collapsed when then-Prime Minister Harold Wilson told the Germans about it.

Aides said Pompidou inherited the idea but kept hesitating. Then, as the French sources tell the story, he was confronted with the nationalization of France's oil interests in Algeria. Pompidou determined to take decisive action in regard to the European situation before time again ran out on him.

The response in Britain to the breakthrough in Paris was about what might have been expected. The papers in favor of joining the Market were jubilant. The Daily Express, fiercely opposed, said: "Mr. Pompidou may call this a marriage. The British people call it a life sentence. And their response to Mr. Heath when he arrives back from Paris will be: 'Forget the wedding. Call off the bans.'"

Fifteen Injured In Tourist Train

ST. LOUIS (AP) — A woman suffered a broken arm and 14 other persons were injured Thursday night when a small tourist train carrying 54 persons overturned at Grant's Farm in south St. Louis County. The train has rubber wheels and is pulled by a tractor. Police said it jackknifed when going down a steep grade. The riders spilled out when it overturned. Melvin Long, who operates the train, said loose gravel might have caused the accident. The farm is owned by Anheuser-Busch, Inc. Most of those on the train were Boy Scout leaders attending a private party at the farm.

Mrs. Gary Powers of Webster Groves, was treated for a broken arm at St. Louis County Hospital and then transferred to Jewish Hospital. A man was admitted to County Hospital for observation and the others released.

The Scottish Rite Club will hold its monthly breakfast at the State Fair Restaurant Saturday, May 22, at 7:30 a.m. All Scottish Rite Masons are urged to attend. John St. Clair, Pres., Bruce McCully, Sec'y.

Granite Lodge #272 A.F. & A.M. will meet in stated communication Friday, May 21st, at 7:30 P.M., Masonic Temple, Broadway and Missouri. Third degree following business meeting. Visiting brethren always welcome. Robert W. Taylor, W.M., Lloyd C. Kennon, Sec'y.

Dredge Operator Loves His Vocation

By JAMES DUSTIN
Fulton Sun-Gazette
For The Associated Press

PORTLAND, Mo. (AP)—Whether Capt. Royal Tate ever read "Life on the River" by Mark Twain he didn't say, but standing on the dredge William S. Mitchell his comments brought back the lines "The face of the water became, in time, a book . . . there was never a page that was void of interest."

Twain's words weren't written to describe a dredging operation but work on the Missouri River might have been similarly described.

"I was born and raised in Portland, but I'm getting pretty near having spent 41 years on the river," Tate comments as he chews on his cigar.

"I started in 1936 and worked my way up. I guess I've done pretty near everything that needs to be done on the boats," he adds.

His command now is something that looks like a riverboat, huge, 1403 Gross tons, a sidewheeler and spotless. His dredge is one of four that keep almost 500 miles of the Kansas City district on the Missouri navigable.

"I hope the work never ends. But unless they can stop all the erosion in the entire watershed, shoals are going to build up," Tate says.

His work is to maintain a channel nine feet deep and 300 feet wide. Most of the traffic on the Missouri is barges.

When working, the dredge spans the entire width of the Missouri, using a 700-foot trailing boom. The dustpan-like scoop of the Mitchell digs 18 feet down, sucking sand and silt into a master pipe 36 inches in diameter.

The silt is then pumped through the Mitchell's hull and on through 700 feet of 36-inch pipe to the side of the river away from the channel.

"We dig 18 feet down, but the sides of the cut collapse in the middle, so it takes four or five cuts to make the channel right," Tate says.

When moving from assignment to a new location the Mitchell is propelled by two giant, oaken paddlewheels. During the dredging the boat is pulled by two winches driven by a 1,300 horsepower steam engine. "We call 'em gypsies, though the correct name is 'hualagidgets,'" interjects D. J. Miller, chief engineer, who adds that two 6,000 pound naval anchors are dropped at the upstream end of a cut and the Mitchell is hauled through.

When a cut is finished the Mitchell is backed downstream and then pulled through again. During the backing operation Tate is in the wheelhouse, two men on the bows singing out the depths and one lonely man on the far end of the boom guiding it downstream.

Another part of the job is getting snags out of the riverbed.

"They'll lie there and eventually build up a shoal," says Tate.

Things have gotten a lot easier on the river since he started, Tate says. "Forty years ago, it wasn't unusual for the men to put in 15 hours a day, and they got paid by the year. Now we work in eight hour shifts, and I've even got three back-up pilots."

Tipton Osteopath Conservation Group Leader

Conservation President

Dr. C. F. Luebbert, a Tipton osteopath, was recently elected president of the 22,000-member Conservation Federation of Missouri at the organization's annual meeting in Jefferson City. The federation, which is a union of approximately 185 local conservation clubs like the Sedalia Rod and Gun Club, is a non-governmental agency which tries to promote and preserve the state's natural beauty and resources for aesthetic and recreational purposes. (Democrat-Capital Photo)

By P. C. THOMAS
Democrat-Capital Staff Writer

TIPTON — What began as a scout master's interest in the outdoors has led a Tipton osteopath to the presidency of the Conservation Federation of Missouri.

Dr. C. F. Luebbert, 46, who has been a resident of Tipton since 1946, was elected president of the federation at its recent annual meeting in Jefferson City. He succeeds Claude Relf, a Kansas City railroad engineer.

In an interview with The Democrat-Capital Dr. Luebbert recalled how, years ago, he used to lead boys on field trips and instill in them an appreciation for nature's beauty and the need to conserve the earth's resources. Since then ecologists and conservationists have gone on to fight battles against polluting industries and the general abuse of the environment.

Dr. Luebbert believes in combating senseless abuse of Missouri's natural resources through legislation. However, he still retains his scout master's faith in the younger generation, and repeatedly emphasizes the need to develop programs to enlist their support.

He takes a common sense approach to enlisting young people's support. "If a kid reminds you not to do a thing like littering roads, you're likely to remember it," he reasoned. Dr. Luebbert is optimistic enough to believe that young people will be influential agents in carrying on the quiet revolution of conservation.

As an initial step, he hopes to introduce a program of education and action to youth organizations in Tipton. "I'm very serious about it," Dr. Luebbert pointed out. He said he hopes to see the program spread throughout the state.

Dr. Luebbert and his wife Viola are practicing conservationists. With their two children away in Phoenix, Ariz., the doctor and his wife share the fun and responsibility of maintaining two farms near Tipton. They live on one farm and use the other 500-acre farm for pasture, woodlands, wildlife feedlots and timber. The farms have several ponds.

In Dr. Luebbert's office lobby hangs a painting of a deer hunter done by Mrs. Luebbert. Also prominently displayed is a sign which reads, "Please do not litter your streets and highways with empty containers."

The doctor and his wife are members of St. Andrews Catholic Church. He is a past president of the Tipton Chamber of Commerce, Lions Club, Farmers and Sportsmen's Club, a fourth-degree Knights of Columbus, is on the board of the Charles E. Still Hospital, Jefferson City, and on the staff of St. Mary's Hospital, Jefferson City.

The Conservation Federation of Missouri, which Dr. Luebbert heads, is often confused with the Missouri Conservation Commission. The Commission is the policy-making wing of the Department of Conservation.

The Conservation Federation is a private

United States-Soviet Union Agree On SALT Bargaining

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon announced Thursday what he termed a major step in breaking the stalemate on nuclear arms talks between the United States and the Soviet Union.

Nixon went on nationwide radio-televised at noon to read a brief statement about the long stalled U. S. Soviet Strategic Arms Limitation Talks (SALT), timed with a similar statement issued in Moscow.

The President said that as a result of negotiations at the highest level, the United States and the Soviet Union:

— "Have agreed to concentrate this year on working out an agreement for the limitation of the deployment of antiballistic missile systems (ABMs)."

— "Have also agreed that, together with concluding an agreement to limit ABMs, they will agree on certain measures with respect to the limitation of offensive strategic weapons."

"The two sides are taking this course in the conviction that it will create more favorable conditions for further negotiations to limit all strategic arms," the statement added. "These negotiations will be actively pursued."

Praise, optimism and some skepticism greeted the announcement in Congress. One of those voicing skepticism was Sen. J. W. Fulbright, D-Ark., chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee.

Another Democratic leader, Rep. F. Edward Hebert of Louisiana, chairman of the House Armed Services Committee, commented that "it's all well and good, but let's keep our powder dry."

Republicans and some other Democrats rated the development favorably.

Whether the two superpowers will actually reach a disarmament accord in the talks that began in 1969 remains to be seen. White House officials acknowledged that the two sides have not abandoned basic positions, which so far have defied lengthy efforts by negotiators for an agreement.

But the high level announcement did seem to indicate an interest by the leaders of both great powers in pushing ahead with the search for an accord on curbing the nuclear arms race, rather than letting the effort die in a diplomatic stalemate.

Ambassador Gerard Smith, head of the U.S. delegation to the SALT talks, currently being held in Vienna, is slated to return there shortly to wind up the current negotiating session. He expects the next round will begin in Helsinki early this summer.

White House officials declined to predict whether an arms limiting agreement with the Soviets will be reached this year. But they said that with the new high level political impetus from Washington and Moscow they expect the pace of negotiations to quicken.

Whether either the United States or the Soviet Union made much of a concession in issuing Thursday's statement was not clear from the public wording. Varying inter-

On ABM System

No Missouri Slowdown

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States has already sunk $3 billion into an ABM system that remains not much more than a few holes in the ground.

President Nixon announced Thursday that disarmament talks this year will be aimed at reaching agreement with the Soviet Union on placing a limit on ABMs, but no slowdown in construction at sites in Montana, North Dakota and Missouri is expected until such an agreement becomes a reality.

With the current timetable, the first Safeguard ABM site at Nekoma, N.D., near Grand Forks Air Force Base, is not due to be ready until the fall of 1974.

The complicated tracking radar for the Spartan missile already has passed nearly a dozen tests in experimental launches over a research range in the Pacific Ocean.

But actual construction has been limited to the underground missile silos in North Dakota, which are now about half finished, and a start on the companion radar buildings.

Work at the second site north of Great Falls, Mont., has been blocked by an overrun in construction bids, which came in too high to be accepted last month. The government is trying to renegotiate the bids.

The total cost of the ABM system already has rocketed from a $10.3 billion price tag for 12 sites planned two years ago to a minimum of $8 billion for just four sites now.

If a nationwide shield of 12 sites should ever be approved, the Pentagon now figures the full cost would be nearly $15 billion—up by 50 per cent in just two years.

Inflation in construction costs and the price of beefing up the defenses are blamed.

The Safeguard system is meant to guard the nation's Minuteman offensive missiles at Grand Forks, Great Falls and Whiteman Air Force Base, Mo.

Twice the Nixon program has survived cliff-hanger votes in the Senate, getting a 51-50 reprieve two years ago and winning 53-45 last year.

The Pentagon has been given $3.7 billion so far. It says it had either spent or committed $3.1 billion of this through the end of February.

Most of the money so far has gone for research, testing and advance buying of complicated radar and computer parts.

The Pentagon is asking Congress for another $1.3 billion for the new fiscal year starting in July.

Russia already has a defensive net around Moscow, according to the Pentagon, and a similar shield for Washington is considered a possibility by late 1977.

Partisan Squabble In Missouri House

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — The Missouri House got into a partisan squabble Thursday over a proposal to let the legislature re-align state and House districts if the bipartisan redistricting commissions fail.

The original measure would have reduced House membership from 163 to 100 but that was cut out. The proposal as it reached the floor provided that the majority party at the time would be assured of the chairmanship on any redistricting committee.

Both the House and Senate redistricting commissions had trouble on that score earlier this year as the two parties tussled over the top job.

The Senate Redistricting Commission finally resolved the problem by having co-chairmen, one from each party. But it took two months for the House redistricting commission to settle its fuss.

Earlier this month that commission finally chose a Republican chairman, a Democratic vice-chairman and a Democratic secretary.

Sponsors said the proposal they brought up Thursday would eliminate such difficulties. The chairmanship would automatically go to the party in power at the time.

Minority Republicans said that was ridiculous.

The bipartisan committees now appear to be functioning as they should and any change won't be needed until a new federal census is available in 1981, Republicans said.

Besides giving the job back to the legislature would mean that the majority party would make sure the bipartisan commissions didn't finish so the actual redistricting job could be done by a partisan controlled legislature.

Republicans tried to amend or even kill the measure. Democrats used their House control to block any minority effort.

Finally the measure was advanced 85-56. That means it still faces another House test before going to the Senate for much the same obstacle course as it threaded in the House.

And even if it should clear the Senate in these final three weeks plus of the session it still would have to be approved by the voters.

House Abandons SST Drive

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House abandoned its drive to resurrect the American supersonic transport Thursday night, but also refused to pay the $155.8 million burial money approved by the Senate.

The possibility of a House-Senate wrangle arose when the House approved $97.3 million instead, but the Senate adjourned, putting off final SST action possibly until next week.

The House adjourned until Monday so final action can come Friday only if the Senate accepts the House's $97.3 million termination figure.

The House rejected the Senate's addition of $58.5 million repayment of SST money invested by airlines by a vote of 157 to 116. It then approved by voice vote only the $97.3 million, covering repayment to the major contractors, the Boeing Co. and General Electric, and federal closing cost.

But House Appropriations chairman George H. Mahon, D-Tex., already had announced the House was giving up its effort to revive the SST in light of the Senate's 58-37 rejection of that drive Wednesday night.

Forty-five Suspects Nabbed in Drug Raids

(Democrat-Capital Service)

WARRENSBURG — Nine persons were arrested here and another in Clinton about 5:30 a.m. Thursday in coordinated drug raids over a five county area in west central Missouri resulting in the apprehension of 45 persons.

The raids were conducted in several communities by police departments and sheriff's officers in Johnson, Henry, Platte, Jackson and Clay counties, the Missouri Highway Patrol and the Central Missouri State College Security Department.

Two separate raids here resulted in nine arrests, including three for the sale of narcotics, according to Johnson County Sheriff Harlen Temple.

Temple told The Democrat-Capital the arrests were made with the help of undercover agents who had earlier made drug purchases.

Charged with the sale of narcotics were three CMSC students, Michael Goth, 19, Warrensburg; Daryl McNeely, 23, Excelsior Springs; and Howard Dale, 21, Sheldon, Mo.

Charged with possession of narcotics were Ralph McNeely, 20, Lawson; Robert Davis, 21, Kansas City; Robert Maher, 23, Shenandoah, Iowa; Anthony Frusco, 23, Knob Noster; Thomas Voitenki, 25, Shenandoah, Iowa; and Edward Deliz, 22, Cliffside Park, N.J.

Arrested in Clinton at the same time by the Henry County Sheriff's Department and the Highway Patrol was Shelley Rinehart, 18, Clinton, charged with selling narcotics. Rinehart was arrested on a warrant issued by Henry County Prosecuting Attorney Charles Stratton and was to have been transferred to Warrensburg Thursday afternoon.

Nine were arraigned in Johnson County Magistrate Court Thursday afternoon and their preliminary hearings tentatively set for May 28. Bonds in varying amounts were set for each.

Bond for Daryl McNeely, charged with illegal possession of marijuana and illegal sale of LSD was set at $11,500, as was Dale's, who is charged with illegal sale of amphetamines and possession of marijuana.

Goth, charged with illegal sale of LSD was released on $10,000 bond.

Frusco, Maher, Deliz and Voitenki were all charged with illegal possession of amphetamines. Their bonds were set at $5,000 each. Ralph McNeely and Davis were charged with illegal possession of marijuana and their bonds were also set at $5,000 each.

Coordinated raids in Platte County resulted in 21 persons being taken into custody. Seven persons were being held in both Clay and Jackson Counties. Ten of those apprehended in Platte County were reported to be juveniles.

North Gains New Route Through Southern Laos

SAIGON (AP) — The North Vietnamese gained a new supply route through southern Laos Thursday just as monsoons began flooding older routes farther to the north.

This setback to allied commands in Indochina came with the abandonment by Royal Laotian forces of the last remaining outpost on the Bolovens Plateau in southernmost Laos. Control of the plateau gives Hanoi drier access to South Vietnam's central highlands and northeastern Cambodia.

Monsoons have begun sweeping the northern part of South Vietnam and the Laotian areas near it and the allied commands had been counting on the weather to hold off any Communist command offensives over the next few months.

The government outpost at Houei Kong in the Bolovens Plateau was evacuated in the face of advancing North Vietnamese troops when Laotian field commanders decided it could not be held.

The eastern edge of the plateau overlooks the Ho Chi Minh supply trail and Hanoi's control of the plateau would enable it to expand the trail's road network westward.

Truck traffic on the trail itself was reported sharply reduced. U.S. aerial reconnaissance observers noted some dirt roads flooded or so muddy that movement was difficult.

The monsoon storms now beginning to sweep the trail also cut into some U.S. bombing and gunship attacks, but did not affect the B52 heavy bombers which fly at 30,000 feet and above the bad weather.

Because of this, the Strategic Air

Command sent most of its Pacific fleets of B52s against the Ho Chi Minh trail.

U.S. headquarters reported a few B52s struck in Cambodia in support of South Vietnamese ground forces but there were no missions flown in South Vietnam and all the rest of the eight-engine bombers were concentrated on Laos.

The U.S. Command, in its weekly casualty summary, reported 24 American servicemen killed in combat last week, the lowest weekly count since the first week in February. At the same time, the command said 27 Americans died from nonhostile causes such as accidents and illnesses. It was the first time since early December that the nonhostile deaths exceeded the number killed in combat.

South Vietnamese casualties also dropped last week, with Saigon headquarters reporting 280 government soldiers killed and 812 wounded, compared with 360 killed and 862 wounded a week earlier.

A letter from Philadelphia reads in part: "I remember A. B. Y and Z before their places in columns were taken by North, South, East and West. In the old days Z didn't make every hand. Doesn't he ever get set now-days?"

Z decided that his four clubs made an unusual no-trump undesirable. If he bid it, Y would become declarer and Z did not relish the prospect. So he passed after B opened with one spade. The bidding progressed as one might expect and Z wound up as declarer at four diamonds doubled.

B won the first trick with the king of hearts and saw that a spade lead was indicated. He and A had been working on suit preference signals so B led the deuce of spades. A ruffed and returned his fourth best club to B's king. B gave his partner another spade ruff whereupon A led his queen of trumps.

After this start there was no way for poor Z to get a trick out of dummy. He wound up losing two spade ruffs, four clubs and a heart for minus 700 and a bottom score. The best East and West could do as declarer would be to pick up 650 points.

"You boys still defend better than anyone," said Z. "I was afraid to double you," remarked A. "I've seen you perform too many miracles. This time you couldn't do anything because your opponents wouldn't let you in the lead."

Priorities Changed For Area Reservoir

The much-studied Flat Creek reservoir project appears to have taken on an entirely new complexion, as revealed at a public meeting Tuesday night sponsored by the Army Corps of Engineers.

At the meeting, Col. R. L. Anderson, district engineer of the Kansas City office of the Corps, explained that a reservoir on Flat Creek does not appear economically feasible at this point. Instead, a dam on Spring Fork Creek 5 miles south of Sedalia is being contemplated.

The Corps readily conceded that such a dam would have an almost negligible effect on controlling flooding on Flat Creek, since Spring Fork Creek is only a tributary. Colonel Anderson said the dam would only reduce Flat Creek's flood potential by something like 10 per cent.

We must therefore look elsewhere for benefits from the project, and the Corps lists two others—water supply for Sedalia and recreation.

The Sedalia Board of Public Works entered a statement into the proceedings Tuesday night favoring such a project, since it would enlarge Sedalia's water supply capacity to meet projected future needs.

Although it was not brought out at the meeting, we suspect that the Army's Safeguard ABM complex earmarked for this area is a major factor in the rearranging of priorities on the Flat Creek Reservoir project. Once operational, the ABM installation will require a large amount of cooling water. It is generally conceded that these demands can only be met by enlarging Sedalia's water system.

The recreational aspect of the proposed reservoir is by far the weakest one for its justification. Sedalia already sits on the edge of the most extensively developed water recreation area in Missouri. Additional facilities are not exactly a priority need.

Another factor in the whole matter involving Flat Creek is an additional study of the entire Blackwater-Lamine Basin (which includes Flat Creek) being made concurrently with the Corps study by the federal Soil Conservation Service, Forest Service and Economic Research Service.

In short, Flat Creek promises to be one of the most studied bodies of water in the entire United States. Sedalians will watch with interest the outcome of it all.

Plays Role

Air of Confidence Difficult For Nixon

By BRUCE BLOSSAT
NEA News Analyst

WASHINGTON (NEA) — Preparing for one of his quite infrequent televised news conferences is a real agony for President Richard Nixon. The ordeal, and it is that, lasts at least a whole day.

BLOSSAT

He is not unique among presidents in taking time to prepare, to anticipate the questions he may get. But, more than others before him, he seems to feel the exquisite uncertainty of the conference drumfire.

He suffers some of this same discomfort as he makes ready for his visitors, even when their time with him is to be brief. He has no natural fund of small talk.

Earlier this year, he told aide H. R. (Bob) Haldeman one morning that he didn't want to see one group of men listed on his schedule. They were public officials with a national-minority background. Nixon had not had time to pack his social first-aid kit with appropriate trivial talk. (The visit was called off, only to be reinstated at the last minute and go surprisingly well.)

Things like this are not at all new to Nixon-watchers. He is an egg-walker, treading delicately upon the thin shells. He tries to make it look like a confident plunge, but most of the time it is seen for what it is.

He is intent on taking great care with the words he utters, yet too often what he says sounds careless. His quest for the right phrase may lead him into entangling thickets. Some of his intrusive comments about the controversial Calley case fit this pattern.

It is always said that "no one really knows Richard Nixon." Some men, though, know him well enough to grasp that he is not a broadly confident man and probably never will be.

The great pain of his life is that he chose fields of endeavor — politics and high public office — where displays of confidence are supposed to be worn like a uniform.

So, in the words of one man who views him sympathetically, "Nixon is always trying to project an image different from what he really is." And, sadly, in television's glare he is observed as he tries shakily to suggest confidence.

Against today's vivid backdrop of distrust for men in high places, Richard Nixon's inborn insecurity could prove critical to his prospects for re-election in 1972. Men who look and sound hesitant often are presumed to be lying and concealing. His potential primary opponent, the dovish Rep. Paul McCloskey of California, says he is doing just that.

One party specialist is saying privately that, though McCloskey probably could not unhorse Nixon in any important primary next year, he might here and there do better than anyone now imagines. The reason: He might serve as repository for the votes of the distrustful.

This same expert thinks it entirely possible that Nixon may be beaten in 1972 even if he winds the Vietnam war down to a nonissue and gets the economy back into a really heartening upward spiral.

The President's credibility problem is not the only factor in this judgment, as a later report will bring out. Still, that dilemma is key.

If he should manage real progress on the war and the economy, the President could in fact be in the ironic position of getting big things done while looking and sounding as if he hadn't.

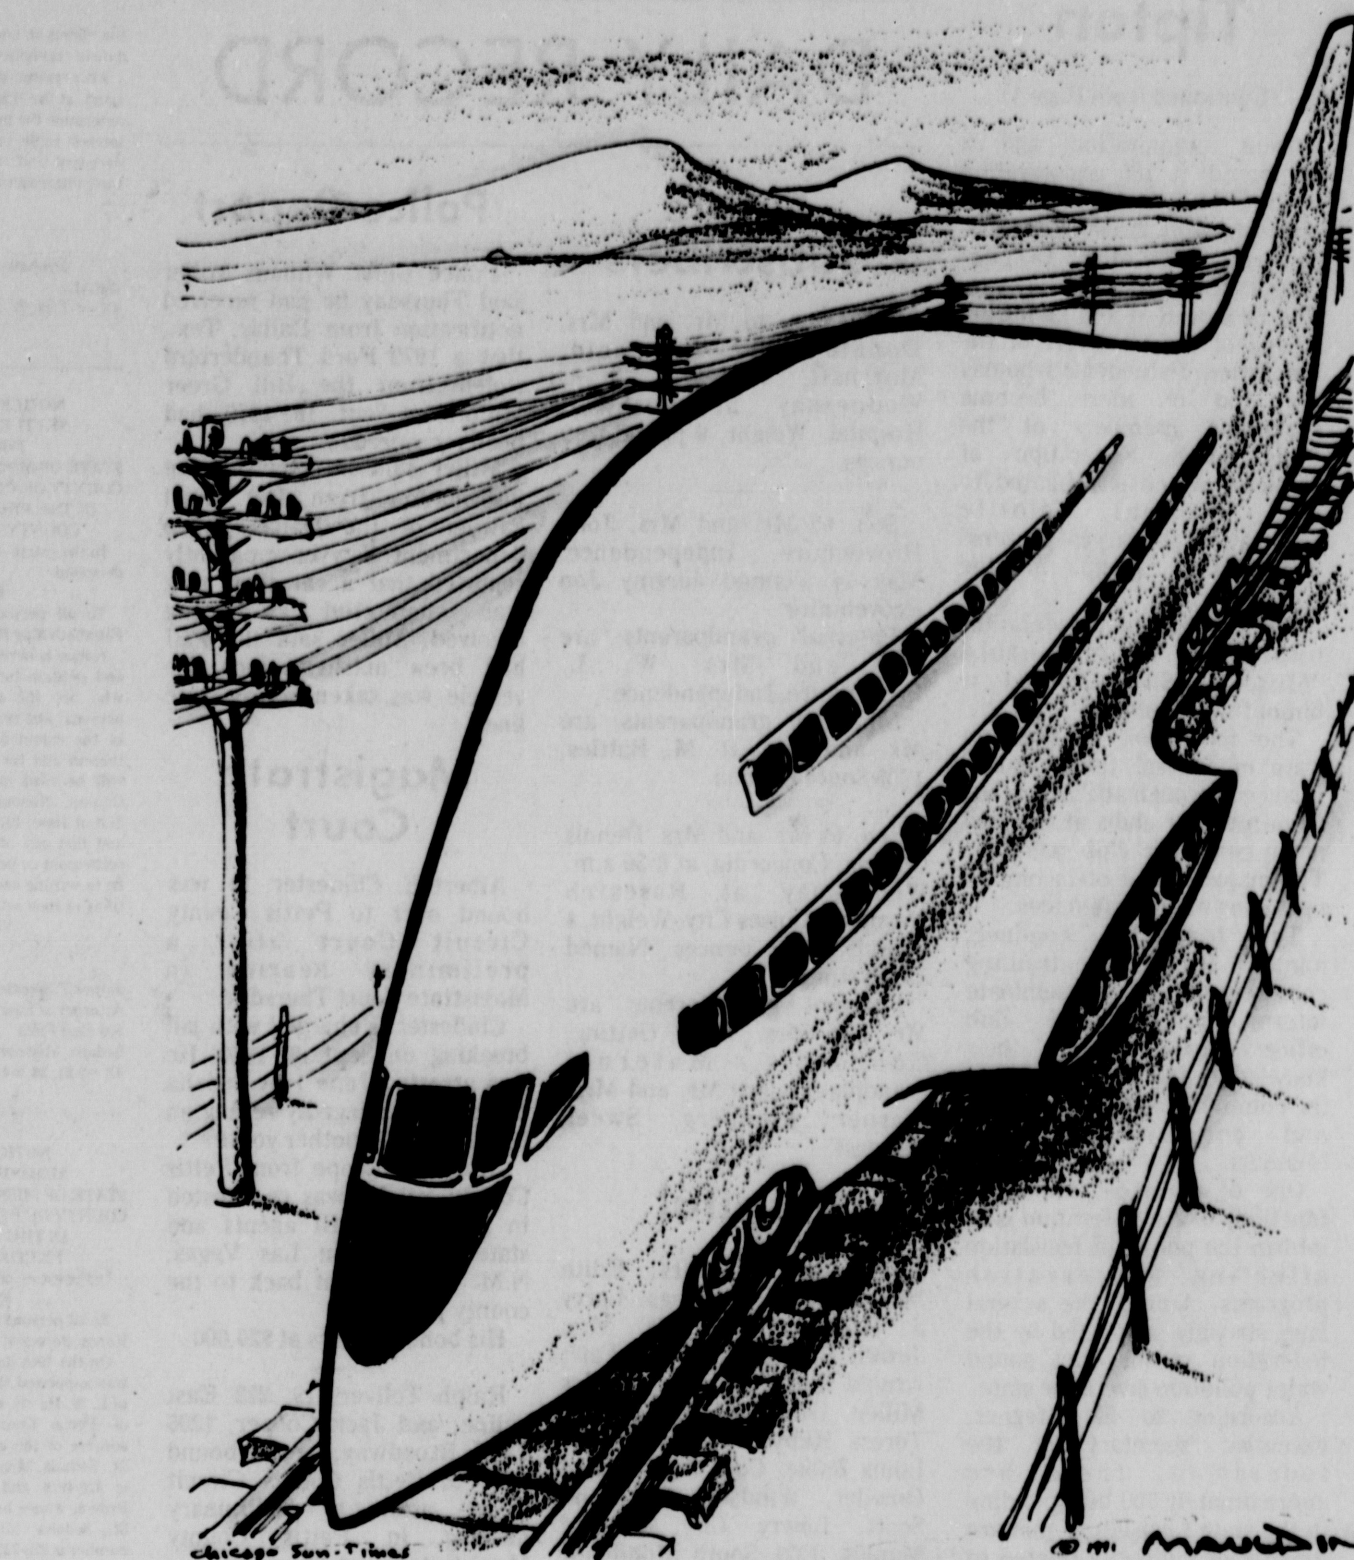

After all, it is Nixon, not any attacking Democrat, who has brought our Vietnam troop levels down to 265,000 from the 543,000 there in 1969.

Beyond doubt he will keep on pulling men out until the force in Vietnam is either quite small, or removed altogether.

The Panama Canal began operation in 1914 as a vital factor in world commerce. The World Almanac notes that during its seven-year period of its construction 240 million cubic yards of earth were excavated at a cost of about $336 millions. Colonel George Goethals, the project's chief engineer, directed a labor force of about 40,000 men.

HOW TO SAVE THE S.S.T. AND REVIVE THE RAILROADS

By JACK ANDERSON

WASHINGTON — Pan American World Airways has made a quiet approach to the Justice Department about the possibility of a merger with TWA. The whole affair has the smell of a backroom deal.

For instance, the approach was made by Herbert Brownell, a top Republican who was attorney general in the Eisenhower administration. He now serves Pan Am as "special counsel" for its merger explorations.

Brownell went over the head of Assistant Attorney General Richard McClaren, whose anti-trust division has jurisdiction over mergers, and made his pitch directly to Attorney General John Mitchell.

Such high-level Republican maneuvering suggests that Pan Am may be attempting to get a secret go-ahead from the Nixon administration.

Although Brownell and TWA Chairman Charles Tillinghast stoutly deny there has been any merger agreement, both confirmed that the two international air giants have held talks. They said no talks are now in progress.

However, Brownell submitted a hush-hush 43-page memorandum to Mitchell entitled "A Pan American-TWA Merger Would Serve the Public Interest."

The document, which my associate Brit Hume has obtained, is laced with language suggesting that both airlines regard a merger as virtually their only chance for survival in a field where they claim the competition has become destructive.

"Steadily increasing competition from foreign airlines and from charter airlines... has left Pan Am and TWA overstrained financially and burdened by the most severe operating losses in the industry," the memo mourns.

"Unless the merger is approved," it says, "charter service must be curtailed if the U.S. flag transatlantic and round-the-world system is to be preserved from ultimate extinction."

If the merger does not go through "and the inevitable drift towards disaster continues with respect to U.S. flag carriers," the memo later asserts, "the country may well be faced with the prospect of keeping alive a mortally stricken industry with the inefficient props of subsidy or government ownership."

Reached at his New York City office, Brownell said Pan Am had "been talking to practically every major domestic airline" but insisted no agreements had been reached.

In an apparent effort to allay any suspicion that Pan Am might be keeping its stockholders in the dark, Brownell hastened to point out that Pan Am President Najeeb Halaby had informed the company's recent annual meeting about vague merger soundings.

Unaware we had a copy of his memo to Mitchell, Brownell at first described it as merely a discussion of the "legality of airline mergers." He called it "a straight legal memo on what must be considered for a big merger to go through."

Pressed, he finally acknowledged that it dealt specifically with TWA. Brownell said, however, that Pan Am's talks with TWA had ended "inconclusively" several months ago.

This was confirmed by TWA's Tillinghast, who described his company's talks with Pan Am as "very preliminary"

Merry-Go-Round

Memo to Mitchell On Airline Merger

and said he had no knowledge of Brownell's approach to the Justice Department.

Nader for President? — We reported last March that consumer crusader Ralph Nader's name had turned up in some of the presidential polls, much to the consternation of the serious contenders. In some polls, Nader led all the Democratic regulars. Now Gore Vidal has launched a presidential boom for Nader in Esquire magazine. All this has embarrassed Nader, who fears the presidential speculation might "impede our work." People might get the mistaken idea, he told us, that he is motivated by presidential ambition. "I am not interested at all," he said.

Humane Reform — A bereaved Florida father, who received a tax form addressed to his son killed in action, has brought a halt to the practice. "For the love of God," he wrote the Internal Revenue Service, "can't your people coordinate themselves with the military so that a man killed in the service of his country does not receive a due-bill for services rendered?" A copy of the letter was sent to Rep. Dante Fascell, D-Fla., who took action through the House Monetary Affairs Committee. Under committee pressure, Commissioner Randolph Thrower reported back: "Hereafter, the three military departments will include the IRS among those receiving timely notification of death of servicemen." He said a letter explaining possible tax refunds to the survivors will be mailed out, and IRS district offices have been ordered to give survivors "personal attention... to deal with tragic situations in a humane way."

Smuggling Route — Narcotics agents have traced huge shipments of deadly heroin from the remote, rugged mountains of northern Thailand to the back alleys of America. Former Chinese Nationalist troops bring the opium down from the mountains to Chiangmai, Thailand. From there, the corrupted Thai army officials supervise the shipments to Bangkok. Then the raw opium is usually shipped in fishing trawlers to Hong Kong. In the dead of night, often in Red Chinese waters, the trawlers transfer the opium to local junks. In Hong Kong, industrious Chinese chemists convert the raw opium into high-grade heroin for smuggling either directly to the U.S. or through such Latin American countries as Colombia. Narcotics agents can pinpoint the Hong Kong heroin because it has minute traces of caffeine in it.

St. Patrick's Day

Many people erroneously suppose March 17 to be the anniversary of the birth of the apostle to Ireland. The date, however, is the traditional day on which St. Patrick died. It is his feast day, not his birthday.

Criticism Of Nixon On Right

By LEON DENNEN
NEA News Analyst

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (NEA) — Now it is conservatives and their allies on the right who are critical of President Nixon's foreign policy. They are increasingly unhappy about his efforts to improve relations with Red China.

Dennen
China should be expelled from the United Nations.

But critics of Nixon's policy are against any American-Chinese rapprochement. They can see only danger signals ahead.

This, unfortunately, is an unrealistic assessment of a complex international problem. As Nixon knows well, there are no simple solutions in diplomacy. Foreign relations cannot remain static for the simple reason that time does not stand still.

Undeniably the President is at his best when dealing with foreign affairs. He also understands communism.

Admittedly, Peking's Marxist-Leninist dictatorship is as obnoxious and dangerous as Moscow's. But, as Mr. Nixon sees it, the Red world is no longer a monolithic bloc. Because of the Russian-Chinese conflict, the "bloc" is now a group of states with a common Marxist-Leninist doctrine but with powerful and conflicting national interests to which Washington must from time to time adjust its policies.

Thus, friendlier relations with Peking might now be in the interest of the United States. There is certainly much to gain from a diplomatic thaw and little to lose.

For one thing, the balance of power in Southeast Asia is changing. Red China and not Russia is now the dominant force in the Asian Communist front which includes North Vietnam, North Korea, Laos and Cambodia.

It is no longer the men in Moscow but Peking's leaders who are in a position to cause an end to the war in Vietnam.

Equally important is the escalating Russian-Chinese ideological quarrel. Peking and Moscow are rivals for leadership of the world Communist movement in Lenin's name.

In addition, the Chinese have ancient and legitimate nationalist grounds for resentment against the Russian czars and their Communist successors.

The possibility of detente between the United States and China is therefore a growing and nagging concern to the Soviet leaders. They see it as evidence of an American-Chinese plot against Russia.

One of the most delicate diplomatic tasks for the Nixon administration may well be how to ease relations with Peking without antagonizing Russia.

The President made it repeatedly clear that he wants to be neither China's ally against the Soviet Union nor the Soviet Union's ally against China.

But this is no reason why the United States should play Moscow's game and help the Russians to keep China isolated.

Moreover, the admission of Peking to the United Nations Security Council—without, of course, depriving Taiwan of a seat in the General Assembly—could well be a major contribution toward lowering world tension.

Regrettably, the debate on Nixon's foreign policy is dominated by partisanship.

His liberal and leftist critics—the "revisionists"—reject altogether the underlying assumptions which have guided American policy since the end of World War II.

The conservatives and rightists, on their part, reject as a matter of conviction any adjustments in this policy to suit changing historical circumstances.

Jaycees To Attend Convention

Sedalia Jaycees will join the other 150 chapters of the Missouri Jaycees in Cape Girardeau this weekend for the annual state convention. An election of officers will be held and awards for the year's achievements will be presented. Highlight of the convention will be an address Saturday evening by Gordon Thomas, U.S. Jaycee president. Other speakers will include Frank Parsons, U.S. Jaycee vice-president.

Sedalia will be represented by Chuck Lawrence in the Speak-Up competition and Keith Rowland in the Spark-Plug competition. Jim Reed will represent the chapter in the Spoke competition.

Mrs. David Curry is representing Sedalia as a candidate for the Outstanding Young Woman award.

Friday a river-front party will be held to begin the weekend's activities and Saturday and Sunday business sessions will be held.

Members of the Sedalia delegation will include: Robert Burke, outgoing president; Joe Doggett, incoming president, and Mrs. Doggett; Mr. and Mrs. Jim Reed, Mr. and Mrs. David Curry, Mr. and Mrs. Chuck Lawrence, Mr. and Mrs. Keith Rowland, Mr. and Mrs. Nevin Alquist, Mr. and Mrs. Gary Evert, Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Moore, Joe Bode, Ron Hoppes and John Otten. Postmaster Explains Revisions

An explanation of the reorganization of the postal service was given by Postmaster Maurice Hogan to Kiwanians at their meeting Thursday at the Bothwell Hotel.

Hogan opened his presentation by showing a color film dealing with the magnitude of the postal service's task and some of the new technology that has been developed to deal with it.

He then explained the main provisions of the Postal Reorganization and Salary Adjustment Act of 1970, under which the U.S. Postal Service will take over July 1. The main provisions of the act set up a non-partisan commission, assisted by an advisory committee, to administer the U.S. postal system.

Hogan said the reorganized Postal Service is designed to be self-sufficient, and not dependent upon the federal government for subsidies, which amount to around $1 billion a year at present.

One local change under the reorganization will place the Sedalia post office under the Chicago regional office. It is currently under the St. Louis office.

Hogan was introduced by Dean Allee, program chairman. Guests were Bob Smith, Topeka, Kan., Bob Allen and Gary Ewing, with John St. Clair, and the Rev. Jean Cook, with Jim Harms.

Birthday greetings were extended to Dr. Joe Bennett, and singing was led by Abe Rosenthal, accompanied by Mrs. Lillian Maynard.

Green Beret Group Lands At Boonville

BOONVILLE, Mo. (AP) — A 24-man contingent of the Army's Green Berets hit the south shore of the Missouri River at Boonville Thursday to gas up, make repairs and visit Kemper Military School before continuing their journey retracing the Lewis and Clark expedition.

The group, traveling in six assault craft, originally was scheduled to leave Boonville around 11 a.m. but did not get away until 1 p.m. after accepting an invitation from Col. J.B. Black, Kemper president, to stand in a Band Box review, a limited version of a dress parade, on the campus.

Three captains in the contingent—Michael L. Lewis, Philip L. Guilford and Bernard J. Harkins Jr.—were made honorary Army colonels.

Funeral Services

Jack Hedderich

Funeral services for Jack Hedderich, 15, 1818 West Fifth, who died Wednesday as a result of injuries sustained in a car-bicycle accident Tuesday, were held at 10 a.m. Friday at the McLaughlin Funeral Chapel with the Rev. William Lusk officiating.

Burial was in Crown Hill Cemetery.

Russell F. Gruver

WARSAW — Funeral services for Russell F. Gruver, 65, who died early Wednesday morning, will be held at 2 p.m. Friday at the Reser Funeral Chapel here with the Rev. J. D. Little officiating.

Burial will be in Englewood Cemetery, Clinton.

Used Hearing Aid Batteries

Are Collected

A campaign to recover used mercury and silver oxide hearing aid batteries is underway in Pettis County, it was learned Tuesday.

In its sixth year, the program is endorsed by the National Easter Seal Society for Crippled Children and Adults, according to A. B. Warren, co-ordinator of the local drive.

The collection effort is also described as an anti-pollution drive since mercury is considered a threat to the environment.

The hearing aid batteries will be processed and the mercury and silver oxide reused. Warren's RX Inc., 212 South Ohio, is the collection center in Sedalia.

John Adams, son of John Quincy Adams, was the only son of a president married in the White House.

citizens' organization, and is composed of 185 conservation clubs in Missouri with approximately 22,000 members, making it the largest conservation group in the state. The Sedalia Rod and Gun Club is one of the members of the federation. Individuals who pay $10 and or more become sustaining members of the Conservation Federation of Missouri which is affiliated to the National Wildlife Federation, the largest citizens' conservation group in the world.

The Conservation Federation publishes a bimonthly "Missouri Wildlife," and a bimonthly newsletter.

The federation receives no state or federal funds and is financed through affiliation fees from member clubs at the rate of 50 cents per club member. The major source of income is sustaining membership fees.

The federation conducts annual leadership training conferences to disseminate information to local club officers and to pool their knowledge and experiences to the common good of sportsmen and conservationists in Missouri.

One of the most important functions of the federation is to inform the public of legislation affecting conservation programs. Among the several laws strongly supported by the federation is the first sound water pollution law in the state.

According to Ed Stegner, executive secretary of the federation, there are approximately 100 bills pending in the state Legislature that are directly or indirectly related to conservation.

Dr. Luebbert said he is gratified to see that the strip mine reclamation bill was signed into law this session. The bill was drafted by the Conservation Federation.

Asked what chances he gave scenic rivers legislation, Dr. Luebbert said, "I don't think we'll ever get anything fully acceptable to landowners." He pointed out that the stiff opposition to the original bill was due "99 per cent to misunderstanding on the part of landowners" and the rest to "a little anxiety and over-enthusiasm on the part of sportsmen."

Dr. Luebbert said that "the greatest emphasis" of the federation during his term will be the implementation of the Leopold Report, the result of an independent study of Missouri's natural resources funded by the Edward K. Love Conservation Foundation of St. Louis. The report of the study conducted by three out-of-state professors, provides an up-to-date appraisal of Missouri's conservation program and offers suggestions for improvement.

Dr. Luebbert pointed out that Missouri has one of the best conservation programs in the United States. The state Department of Conservation "has been used as a model for the entire nation," he said. The changing of the department to its present non-partisan status was largely due to the efforts of the Conservation Federation in the 1930s, he pointed out.

He recalled an impression he gathered when he attended the recent National Wildlife Conference in Portland, Ore. "After reviewing conservation programs of several states larger than Missouri I realized how good a system we had," he said.

Springfield Companies Indicted

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Eight Springfield, Mo., corporations and their president, James Stewart Amber, 43, were named in indictments returned by a Federal Grand Jury to Judge William H. Becker Wednesday in U.S. District Court.

Sedalia firemen were called to the Dog 'N' Suds Drive-In, 18th and Limit, at 12:45 p.m. Thursday, when several aprons caught fire in a dryer. Firemen used two pump buckets to extinguish the fire. Damage was estimated at $25.

Elevator Mishap Fatal For Woman

ROLLA, Mo. (AP) — Frances Christie, wife of retired Navy Captain Carl G. Christie, was killed Wednesday when an elevator in her rural home near Rolla fell on her.

The highway patrol said Mrs. Christie was apparently trapped in the elevator between the basement and living quarters of the home and the elevator fell on her as she attempted to crawl out of it.

Christie is an associate professor of engineering management at the University of Missouri-Rolla.

Elementary Chorus

To Present Concert

The 42-member C. C. Hubbard Elementary Chorus will present its final concert of the school year at Ward Memorial Baptist Church at 7 p.m. Sunday.

Directed by Mrs. Kathryn C. Rayford, 731 West Cooper, the chorus has presented four concerts this year. Members of the fifth, sixth and seventh grades make up the group.

HORSE-FUNDED RESEARCH FRANKFORT, Ky. (AP) — The two-year-old thoroughbred which Kentucky horsemen gave to visiting Republican governors at their conference two years ago has won $5,000 in races. A check for that amount was donated to a non-profit horse research foundation.

Police Report

Police Chief William Miller said Thursday he had received notification from Dallas, Tex., that a 1970 Ford Thunderbird stolen from the Bill Greer Motors lot Sept. 18, 1970, had been recovered.

Miller said he received the information from Det. Earl Sawyer of the Dallas police department. Sawyer apparently reported that a car theft ring was suspected as being involved. Miller said the FBI had been notified since the vehicle was taken across state lines.

Magistrate Court

Albert E. Chidester, 19, was bound over to Pettis County Circuit Court after a preliminary hearing in Magistrate Court Thursday.

Chidester is charged with jail breaking on Sept. 9, 1970. He was arrested June 1 by Sedalia police after allegedly selling an LSD tablet to another youth.

After his escape from Pettis County jail he was re-arrested in March by FBI agents and state troopers in Las Vegas, N.M. and brought back to the county jail.

His bond remains at $20,000.

Ralph Toliver, 19, 223 East Saline, and Jack Cooper, 1206 East Broadway, were bound over to Pettis County Circuit Court after a preliminary hearing in Pettis County Magistrate Court Thursday.

The two men are separately charged with molesting a minor, reportedly a nine-year-old girl, on May 6.

Their bonds remain at $1,500 each. The men are being held in Pettis County jail.

Ronald L. Paxton, 802 East Ninth, was bound over to Pettis County Circuit Court after a preliminary hearing in Magistrate Court Thursday.

He is charged with issuing a forged check. The charge stems from a Feb. 12 incident when Paxton allegedly wrote a $75 check in the name of Wayne Booth and cashed it at Leonard's 66 service station. Paxton is free on a $1,000 bond.

Sadat Voices Policy

CAIRO (AP) — President Anwar Sadat declared Thursday that President Nixon must "squeeze and wring" Israel into withdrawing from occupied Arab land if he wants to avert a new Middle East war.

In a two-pronged policy speech to the Egyptian National Assembly, Sadat discussed the American role in the Arab-Israeli crisis and set down guidelines for internal reform after his purge of political foes who tried to oust him last week.

Thumping his fist on the lectern, Sadat revealed he had officially demanded that Nixon force Israel to withdraw from all Arab territory captured in the 1967 war.

The United States, Sadat said, must "openly and frankly" define its position on the crisis. "We are at a historic crossroads. It is a question of peace or war."
